CLASS OF 1854.

JOHN PERRY ALLISON, son of John and Abigail Perry, b. Peterboro, N.H., 20 July, 1831. Fitted at Phillips Exeter Academy, and entered Sophomore in 1851. Was principal of High School at Fairhaven, Mass., for twenty-two weeks. Studied law with Wells (John S.) & Bacon at Exeter, N.H., until April, 1857, when he went to Sioux City, Ia., where he has lived ever since, engaged in the private banking business, under firm name of Weare & Allison. Admitted to Woodbury County Bar May, 1857. Elected Judge of Woodbury County in 1859, and held office till 1862. Delegate to Democratic conventions at Baltimore in 1872 and St. Louis in 1876. Treasurer of Woodbury County from 1879 to 1886. Member of Board of Education for eighteen years. Has been twice candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket, but defeated both times. Married to Miss Thyng at Exeter in 1858, and has three children.

THOMAS PINCKNEY ALLSTON, third son of Thomas Pinckney Allston and Susan E. Smith, b. Georgetown, S.C., 7 Dec., 1832. Entered Sophomore Class of South Carolina College December, 1850. Left South Carolina College on account "of having joined the celebrated Belly Rebellion of 1852," and entered our class in Junior year. For some time in the commission business with George A. Hopley & Co. in Charleston, S.C. Was for a long time in the Confederate army, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Is reported to have been in every battle fought by Lee's army, until Grant's army crossed the James River for Petersburg, distinguishing himself by great coolness and gallantry. He died of pyæmia, after being three times wounded in the battle of the Wilderness, at Jackson Hospital, near Richmond, 19 June, 1864.

FREDERIC LOTHROP AMES, son of Oliver Ames, Jr., and Sarah Lothrop Ames, b. 8 June, 1835, at North Easton, Mass. Fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, and entered Sophomore. A.B. 1855. Went into the iron business with his father in fall of 1854 in North Easton. In 1863 was a member of firm of Oliver Ames & Sons. In 1876 Treasurer of Oliver Ames & Sons Corporation. Was State Senator from First Bristol District for session of 1872. Was Trustee of Massachusetts General Hospital and Institute of Technology, member of the Corporation of Harvard College. Was generally regarded as one of the best informed men in railroad matters in the country. Was pecuniarily interested and a Director in fifty or more railroad, transportation, telegraph, trust companies and banks. He was warmly interested in everything that pertained to the welfare of Harvard, as evinced by his well-known liberal gifts to several of its departments. He was much interested in agriculture, and was a patron of the fine arts, and had an unusually fine collection of pictures by celebrated painters. He contributed liberally to charitable and educational objects, and was President of the Home for Incurables, Trustee of the Children's Hospital. He was a man of the strictest integrity and of sterling personal character. He married 7 June, 1860, Miss Rebecca C. Blair, daughter of James Blair of St. Louis, and has had five children, three sons and two daughters. Oliver graduated (H.U.) 1886. He died suddenly of cerebral apoplexy on the steamer "Pilgrim," going to New York, 13 Sept., 1893.

After the war was in the employ of the Burlington & Missouri Railroad, Iowa, when he lived at Burlington. Subsequently went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was appointed Surveyor-general. Died at San Rafael, Cal., 6 April, 1878. He married Miss Margaret C. Plumley, of Philadelphia, 17 May, 1865, by whom he had three children. Was quite a prolific writer of articles for various magazines and newspapers, mostly relating to travels and scenes in the War of the Rebellion.

BENJAMIN HOLLOWAY BAILEY, son of Holloway and Lucy Sawyer, b. Bolton, Mass., 5 July, 1829. Fitted for college at Gates Academy, Marlboro, and Leicester Academy. Was two years principal of High School at Chicopee, and for eighteen months had charge of one of the departments of High School, Providence, R.I. Studied law fourteen months with Tillinghast & Bradlee at Providence. Entered Divinity School at Cambridge, and graduated in 1860. Became pastor of First Church at Dedham, Mass., for seven years, and Chairman of School Committee five years. Accepted call to the First Parish, Portland, Me., January, 1868, where he remained till fall of 1872. January, 1873, was pastor of the Second Parish in Marblehead, Mass., and also on School Committee. In May, 1884, settled over the Unitarian church at Malden, where he now is. In June, 1864, married Miss Sampson, of Dedham, and has had five children.

JOHN CHANDLER BANCROFT, son of George (H.U. 1817) and Sarah, b. Northampton, Mass., 24 April, 1835. Fitted for college at schools abroad mostly. After graduating, remained one year at Law School, Cambridge. Was for some time in the office of Mr. Dwight, merchant at Boston. For two years was with Lee, Higginson & Co. Was for some time in Dresden, Düsseldorf, and Paris, studying drawing and landscape painting. After returning to this country, practised decorative wood-work, in Boston and New York. Has been married twice, first to Miss L. M. Denny, of Barre, Mass., and second to Miss H. B. James, and has three children.

GEORGE LUDOVIC BENNET (now Ludovic Bennet), b. New York City, 19 Aug., 1831. Fitted for college by Mr. Thomas Chase. Entered Sophomore. A.M. 1858. For some time was in Dane Law School, and subsequently studied law in the office of Butler, Evarts, & Southmayd. Was admitted to New York Bar, and for a year or two was managing clerk in office of Clift & Lane. Has since practised law in New York and Brooklyn, frequently going to Washington in the interest of clients. He writes: "To my regret, I was never in the war, unless it may be so called volunteering for the first battle of Bull Run. I went out from Washington with four regiments to join one on the field, but never got there. Smelt no rebel powder, and took nothing by the venture except a tremendous cold caught sleeping on the sacred soil of Virginia in that severe storm which came down the night after the battle." In 1872 was Chairman of the Law Committee of the famous Committee of One Hundred to reform the corrupt administration of the city of Brooklyn, and was author of the provision in the new city charter giving the mayor an absolute veto power of all ordinances of Common Council requiring expenditure of public money, and has taken a conspicuous part in the legislation relating to the changes in the Brooklyn city charter. Was nominated and elected an Alderman, but counted out, and has refused nominations for other offices, among them Treasurer of County. Has devoted much time to and written on political and historical subjects, notably a history of voting by ballot, which has been delivered before the New York Historical Society, New York Academy of Anthropology, and others. Is a member of Hamilton Club, Blooming Grove Park Club, Twentieth Century, Long Island Historical Society, New York Geographical Society, Trustee of the Academy of Anthropology, Academy of Political and Social Science, Philadelphia, and others. Married in 1860 Miss Imlay, daughter of William H. Imlay, of Hartford, Conn., and has three daughters and one son, Imlay (Princeton A.B. 1892). Resides in Brooklyn.

FRANK WINTHROP BIGELOW, son of Alpheus and Mary Anne H. (Townsend) Bigelow, b. Weston, Mass., 18 July, 1833. Fitted for college at Leicester and Lawrence Academies and Cambridge High School. Studied law with Hon. George F. Hoar, Worcester; Dane Law School, 1856; LL.B., 1857, in course; in office of Tolman Willey, Esq., some little time. Admitted to Suffolk Bar October, 1857. In July, 1861, enlisted in Company G, Thirteenth Massachusetts Infantry, United States Volunteers. Made Sergeant. Was detailed clerk to Captain James M. Ellis, Com. Subs. Abercrombie's Brigade till January, 1863. Was for a time a Captain Fourth New York Cavalry. For some years practised law at Waltham and Boston. Married 1871 to Miss A. U. L. Haynes, and has had six children.

WILLIAM GREENE BINNEY, son of Dr. Amos and Mary Anne Binney, b. Boston, 22 Oct., 1833. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School and with William H. Brooks. Ill-health caused him to leave college Junior year, and he then made an equestrian tour to the West. A.B. 1857. Has devoted himself to continuing the studies of his father on the land shells of America, and has published many works and papers on that and kindred subjects, giving him a reputation which many societies at home and abroad have considered worthy of recognition by electing him a member, among them Conchological Society of Great Britain, also of France, Germany, New York Academy of Sciences, Academy Natural Sciences of Philadelphia (in which he was curator of conchology in 1857), Boston, Pennsylvania, Buffalo, California, and other places. Received honorary degree of A.M. Harvard, 1884. Married in March, 1855, Miss Chamberlain, of Philadelphia, and has two daughters, one of whom, Florence, married Prince di Campercale, of Palermo. Excepting occasional visits to Europe, has always lived at Burlington, N.J.

ATHERTON BLIGHT, son of George and Maria Blight, b. Philadelphia, 1 March, 1834, and entered Freshman. A.M. 1858. Spent two years after graduating in travelling in Europe with Furness and Savage. Returned in 1856, and after two years studying law was admitted to Philadelphia Bar in 1859, but has never practised. In 1872 married Nina, daughter of Richard S. Greenough, the sculptor, and has had three daughters. Has lived since marriage at Philadelphia and Newport, and has passed nine winters at Cannes on the French Riviera. In a letter dated at Cannes, he writes: "My four years at Cambridge were a great blessing to me. I shall always think my going to Harvard was the parting of the ways for me. It opened a new and richer intellectual life, and inspired me with the ambition to cultivate myself as much as my poor limited brain will allow. And, then, the charming friendships we made! It is a far cry, indeed, to '54; but how clear and sweet the echo will ever come back as long as consciousness remains!"

JULES JOSEPH CARRIÈRE, son of Antoine and Emma Carrière, b. New Orleans, 11 Feb., 1835. Fitted for college at M. Pengreb's School in New York. April, 1855, went to Paris, where he remained for some time, studying. In 1862 was member of staff of Governor Martin, of Louisiana. 1869 in Paris, practising medicine. In 1886 was seen in Paris by our classmate Curtis, who learned that he received degree of Bachelier d'Lettres, Paris. He was for some time Interne des Hôpitaux de Paris, received degree of M.D., and for gallant conduct in the Franco-German War and during the Commune was made Chevalier de la Légion d'Honneur. He died in Paris in 1889(?). Was married, but had no children.

HENRY COBB, son of Enoch T. and Aliab Cobb, b. 5 Feb., 1833, in Barnstable, Mass. Fitted for college at the Chauncy Hall School and with Henry B. Wheelwright at Taunton. At Commencement of Junior year was taken sick, travelled abroad, and never joined the class again, but was allowed to graduate with it. Was engineer on the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap & Charleston Railroad at Tazewell, E. Tenn., where he died, unmarried, 5 Jan., 1855.

EDWARD WAINWRIGHT CODMAN, son of Edward and Mary Jane Wainwright, b. Boston, 17 April, 1833. Fitted for college in several private schools, but principally at the Boston Latin School. Since graduating has been more or less actively engaged in business until latter part of 1877. Since then has passed several years abroad. For five years was Treasurer of the Pepperell and Laconia Mills. Married in 1858 to Miss Leslie P. Tilden. Has one daughter. Is a member of Somerset, St. Botolph, and Eastern Yacht Clubs, Boston Athletic Association, and sundry other associations, civic, military, and aquatic. Has held no political office other than as an occasional member of Town Committees.

THEODORE EDSON COLBURN, youngest son of Warren, b. Lowell, 23 April, 1834. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School and Phillips Exeter Academy. Entered Sophomore year. Was at the Scientific School, Cambridge, from September, 1854, till March, 1855. Entered the office of Architect George Snell, where he remained some time. In 1859-60 was in Europe. On his return established in Boston as an architect. His health was delicate, and the winters he passed in the South-west. He died, unmarried, of consumption, in Boston, 5 July, 1889.

CHARLES GILMAN CONNER, son of Charles and Mary T. (Gilman) Conner, b. Exeter, N.H., 6 July, 1833. Fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy. Entered Sophomore. 1854 in law office of Henry F. That was consolidated with the Whitman & Miles Manufacturing Company of Akron, Ohio, under name of Whitman & Barnes Manufacturing Company, of which he is now Vice-President and Manager of Eastern Department. 1863 married Cordelia, daughter of David Cogswell, of Syracuse. She died in 1870, leaving two daughters: Mary C., who married Professor A. N. Jannaris, of London. Director in several banks and trust companies, and member of Century, Citizens, and Republican Clubs of Syracuse, and University and Republican of New York. Was for four years President of Board of Police Commissioners of Syracuse, the duties of which office he performed with activity, energy, fearlessness, and promptness, "and in a manner to earn him the respect and confidence of the great body of citizens of whatever politics."

EDWARD GRAHAM DAVES, second son of John Pugh Daves and Elizabeth Batchelor Graham, b. New Berne, N.C., 31 March, 1833. His grandfather was Major John Daves, an officer of the North Carolina line in the Revolutionary army. Fitted for college at the New Berne Academy, and under the instruction of the Rev. F. M. Hubbard and private tutors. Entered Law School, Cambridge, in 1854. LL.B. Harvard 1856. Married 29 June, 1855, Miss Mary Foster, of Cambridge. [His son, Edward G. Daves, Jr., was born at Baltimore, 16 May, 1856, and, being the first child born to a member of the class, received the class cradle in October, 1856. He died in August, 1857.] Was for some time in the law office of Brown & Brown at Baltimore, and was admitted to the Maryland Bar. In 1856 received the appointment of Professor of Greek in Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., where he continued for five years. In the spring of 1861 he sailed for Europe, and spent ten years in foreign travel, attending lectures at the university of Bonn, and keeping a private school for American boys at Vevay. Returned in 1871, and settled in Baltimore, devoting himself to private teaching and lecturing on literary topics. Has taken great interest in colonial history. Through his influence and efforts a monument to the heroes of the Maryland line has been erected on the Guilford battlefield; and he organized a company for the purchase and preservation of Fort Raleigh on Roanoke Island, "the birthplace of Anglo-American civilization." He is member of the Maryland State Society of the Cincinnati and of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution. Has five children living, one of whom, John Collins, graduated at Princeton in 1885.

DANIEL DENNY, second son of Daniel and Harriet J. G. Denny, b. Boston, 16 Jan., 1835. Denny writes: "My life has been an uneventful one as far as the class and the public generally are concerned. I was fitted for college at Chauncy Hall School, and entered at the age of nineteen. I took good care not to undermine my health by too much study, and graduated without honors in the regular course. At the proper time I took my A.M. at an expense of $5. On leaving college, I entered the counting-room of Denny, Rice & Gardner, dry goods and wool commission merchants, and in 1857 became a partner on the retirement of Henry J. Gardner, the governor of the State, the firm name becoming Denny, Rice & Co. As this, my first year in business, was a panic year, my profits were not large. I continued in this firm till 1871, when my father, Daniel Denny, Sr., and myself retired from the firm. At this time I became a member of the firm of Denny, Poor & Co., dry-goods commission merchants of Boston and New York. I am still an active partner in this house. We have had a fair share of success. I was married 24 May, 1860, to Mary de Forest Bigelow, daughter of Asa Bigelow, Jr., of New York. We have four children,—two daughters and two sons. My eldest son, Daniel, Jr., graduated from Harvard in the class of 1887, and is now in the employ of Denny, Poor & Co. My second son, Clarence Bigelow, was two years at Cambridge, but left at the end of the Sophomore year to go into business. None of my children are married. I have never had any political aspirations, and have never held any public office. I have been Trustee of the Suffolk Savings Bank and Director of the National Eagle Bank for many years."

FREDERIC WILLIAM DORR, son of William Bradley and Mary Dorr, b. Boston, 6 Aug., 1835. Fitted for college at Framingham Academy and S. M. Weld's School. September, 1854, Scientific School at Cambridge for one year. Attached to the United States Coast Survey Department, Captain in the United States Army, and served as Topographical Engineer on the staff of General Humphrey during Peninsula campaign, General Smith's with the Army of the Cumberland, and General Sherman's in the campaign through Carolinas in 1865. Subsequently to the war was employed in the Coast Survey Department at Washington, where he was in 1874. Died at Somerville, Mass., 21 Dec., 1877. He married Ellen F., daughter of George W. Bates, of Bridgewater, 7 April, 1864.

HIRAM TALLMADGE EWERS [changed to Hiram Ewers Tallmadge in 1862], son of John Crocker Ewers and Jane Tallmadge, b. Tompkins County, New York, 8 Jan., 1833. Entered Sophomore Class, Geneva College, 1851. Entered Harvard Junior year. A.M. 1857. Was principal of Davidson High School, Nashville, for two years. Studied law with Hon. Cave Johnson at Nashville, and admitted to that bar spring of 1856. Studied in the office of Judge James G. Hoyt at Buffalo, N.Y. Admitted to New York Bar in 1858. Practised law in Buffalo till 1862, when he removed to New York City, where he has since lived. While at Buffalo was Secretary Buffalo Academy of Fine Arts.

EDWARD WILLIAM FORBUSH, youngest son of Jonathan and Louisa Forbush, b. Boston, 6 Oct., 1833. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School and by a tutor at Bolton. Cambridge Law School 1854. LL.B. 1856. 1857 in the boot, shoe, and leather business in Boston. 8 Nov., 1858, married Mary J. Faxon, of Boston, by whom he had three children. Retired from business in 1872. For a short time was editor of the Stock Reporter, a financial daily newspaper in Boston. Died of pneumonia in Boston, 18 Dec., 1880.

GEORGE CONVERS FRANCIS, youngest child of the Rev. Convers Francis and Abby B. Allyn, b. Watertown, 30 Oct., 1834. Fitted for college at Hopkins School, Cambridge. January, 1855, with the publishing house of Phillips, Sampson & Co., Boston. March, 1859, formed partnership with Charles Sever (firm name Sever & Francis) at Cambridge, in the publishing and bookselling business, University Book Store. His health being delicate, he resided for some time abroad, and was for a while at Nice, France, where he died of consumption 3 March, 1872. His wife was Ellen M. Dimmock, daughter of John L. Dimmock, of Watertown.

HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, son of William H. (H.U. 1820) and Annis J. Furness, b. Philadelphia, 2 Nov., 1833. Fitted for college at various private schools, with Mr. E. Nulty, but taught himself most "of the qualifications for admission into the Freshman Class." During fall of 1854 sailed for Europe, and on return studied law with William M. Meredith, and was admitted to Philadelphia Bar November, 1859. Opened a law office on his own account in 1860, but deafness prevented his practising law to advantage; and he has devoted himself to literary pursuits, especially to a study of the plays of Shakespeare, several of which he has published with copious notes, giving him the reputation of being the greatest living Shakesperian critic and scholar. Married in 1860 Miss Helen K. Rogers, and has had four children. [Son, Horace Howard (H.U. 1888).] A.M. 1858, (Hon.) 1877; Ph.D. Halle 1878; LL.D. University Pennsylvania 1879; L.H.D. Columbia 1887. Member American Philosophical Society.

JOHN GOURDIN GAILLARD, b. Pineville, S.C., 28 June, 1833. In Sophomore Class, South Carolina College in December, 1850. Left on account of rebellion to break up Steward's Hall, and entered Junior, Harvard University, March, 1853. April, 1855, in Cambridge Scientific School, studying civil engineering. 12 April, 1858, a cotton-planter, near Pineville, S.C. Married Miss Porcher 19 Nov., 1857. Supposed to have been in the Confederate service. 15 Oct., 1886, P.O. address, Eutawville, S.C.

CHARLES DEXTER GAMBRILL, b. Boston, 19 Jan., 1834. After graduating, entered Scientific School, Cambridge. In March, 1855, in the office of George Snell, architect, in Boston. Soon afterwards removed to New York, and was with Richard M. Hunt. He made his home here, but was for some time in Madison City, practising his profession. Was connected in business in New York,—first with George Post, for several years with H. H. Richardson. Was for some months alone, and then associated himself with H. E. Ficken. Was one of the oldest members of the Century Club, and a member also of the Union League Club. He died, we regret to say, by his own hand, 13 Sept., 1880, leaving a widow.

MARTIN WITHERSPOON GARY, b. Cokesbury, Abbeville District, S.C., in 1832(?). At seventeen years of age he entered South Carolina College, where he stayed two years, when he went to Princeton College, New Jersey, where he graduated with honors, and then commenced the practice of law in Edgefield, S.C. Entered the Confederate service as Captain, rose to be Brigadier-general, and was regarded as one of the most gallant officers. After the war he resumed practice at the bar, and became quite prominent in politics. He died, unmarried, at Edgefield, 9 April, 1881.

CHARLES PICKERING GERRISH, youngest child of James Sawyer Gerrish and Dorcas Barrett, b. Salem, 28 March, 1833. His grandfather, Colonel Barrett, took an active part in the War of the Revolution, and was seven times a member of the Provincial Congress. Was fitted for college under various instructors. During his college course he kept school at several different times in Barnstable, Bolton, and was usher in Hopkins School, Cambridge. For a year after graduation he was assistant teacher in E. S. Dixwell's School in Boston; but, as he wrote, he always "intended to engage in mercantile pursuits." In 1855 he went to New York, and entered the commission house of Prescott & Swain. In the fall of that year he was associated in the commission business with Jedediah Frye, and continued in that line of business until his death, which occurred by his own hand while in a state of melancholia, to which at times he had been subject, 7 May, 1874. He was never married.

AMORY THOMPSON GIBBS, son of Ira and Susan Piper Gibbs, b. Boston, 17 Oct., 1830. Fitted for college at the High and Latin Schools, Boston, and by the Rev. Edward J. Young. Was for a while in Cambridge Law School. Studied in the office of Hon. P. W. Chandler in Boston, and admitted to Suffolk Bar 1857. Practised his profession in Boston for four years. Was with George S. Hale, Esq., till 1870, when he was appointed Assistant Secretary of Harvard College, which office he held for nine years, and was then appointed Secretary vice James W. Harris, deceased, remaining such till the office was abolished. Was for a time a United States weigher and gauger. For four years was clerk of the United States Board of Steamboat Inspectors at Boston. Married in 1856 to Miss Hoyt, and has had four children.

NICHOLAS GILMAN, youngest son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth Gilman, b. Exeter, N.H., 8 May, 1834. Was fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy. Entered our class in Sophomore year with seven others from that academy. He died of typhoid fever at Exeter, 31 Oct., 1854. The following abstract is taken from a notice of him which appeared in the Cambridge Chronicle at the time of his death: "The purity of his character and the dignity of his mind inspired respect and conciliated regard. Acquaintance with him always strengthened into friendship, and friendship warmed into attachment. Not only will the memory of his pure example be treasured in the hearts of his classmates with whom he was associated by the ties of mutual attachment: it will long be cherished in the circles of a still larger friendship."

RICHARD CHAPMAN GOODWIN, son of Ozias and Lucy N. (Chapman) Goodwin, b. Boston, 11 Oct., 1833. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School 1854. For a year in store of W. S. Bullard. Spent two years in foreign travel. For three years, on his return, was in mercantile life. In spring of 1861 raised a company of volunteers, of which he was appointed Captain, and which was attached to the Second Regiment, Colonel Gordon. He followed all the fortunes of his company and regiment, and took great pride in them. His journeys, with their constant exposure and dampness, added to poor and irregular food, began to tell seriously on his health. On 24 July, 1862, he writes of having applied for a furlough, but again on 5 August he speaks of his having been refused on the ground that his was a case rather for resignation than for a furlough. "Resignation!" he adds: "I think I would rather die out here first. I should have to be much sicker than I am now before I should take such a step." On 9 Aug., 1862, in the battle of Cedar Mountain, Va., against all remonstrance, though so weak that he only left the ambulance to be assisted in leading his men, whom, he said with a smile to the chaplain, he could not let go while he stayed behind, in crossing an open field, flanked by the enemy in ambush, he was instantly killed.

FRANCIS HENRY GRIGGS, son of Thomas and Harriot (Fuller) Griggs, b. Brookline, Mass., 14 Nov., 1834. Fitted for college at public schools in Brookline. Was for a time in the engineers' office of Messrs. Doane. Subsequently went into the shoe and leather business at Davenport, Ia., firm name Dawson, Griggs & Co., and in 1860 in Chicago with Wordsworth & Wells. Was reported in July, 1882, as being in the stationery business (Griggs, Luce & Co.) at Davenport, Ia. Have never heard directly from him since graduating.

RICHARD FITCH HALL, son of Daniel and Anginette Fitch, b. Troy, N.Y., 24 Sept., 1833. Fitted for college at Phillips Andover Academy. For twenty years was in the lumber business at Troy, part of time under firm name of Culver & Hall. For nine years was Director, Secretary, and Superintendent of the West Troy Gas Works. In 1855 was connected with the Fire Department: Chief Engineer for three years; Fire Commissioner for twelve years; President of the Board two years. In 1870 was appointed Water Commissioner, and for several years was President of the Board. Is Director of West Troy National Bank, and Trustee of Troy Orphan Asylum. Married in 1860 Miss Sarah H. Belding.

WILLIAM STANLEY HASELTINE, son of John and Elizabeth S., b. Philadelphia, 11 June, 1835. Fitted for college at Philadelphia High School. Was in University of Pennsylvania till end of second term Junior, and then to Cambridge, where he entered Junior. A.M. 1858. Spent the time between graduation and October, 1858, when he returned home, in studying art in different cities of Europe. 1859 established in New York City as an artist. 1860 associate of the National Academy of Design. For many years has resided in Rome, and is said to possess a collection of art objects which surpasses everything collected since Fortuny's time, and is even larger than that made by the Spanish painter. This collection is well housed in the Palazzo Altieri, where he has a studio. Has been twice married,—first to Miss Helen Lane, and second to Miss Helen Marshall, both of New York,—and has several children.

EDWARD DANIEL HAYDEN, son of Ezekiel and Elizabeth W., b. Cambridge, 27 Dec., 1833. Fitted for college at Lawrence Academy and with Mr. Hartwell. After graduating, studied law with Ezra Ripley and Hon. Reuben Chapman. Was in the Dane Law School for a while. In 1858 opened a law office at Boston and Woburn. In 1862 was appointed Paymaster, United States Navy, and was ordered to service in Admiral Porter's squadron. Was in the operations of the navy about Vicksburg, capture of Fort Hindman, and was in Yazoo Pass and Red River expeditions. Was three times Representative to General Court from Thirteenth Middlesex District, 1879-1881. Was Representative to the Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Congresses, from Fifth Cong. District, as a Republican. Was for several terms Selectman of Woburn. For seventeen years President of First National Bank of Woburn, and is Vice-President of the Boston & Albany Railroad. Has been twice married,—the first time to Marcia A. Winn, and the second to Ellen F. Champney.

JOSEPH ALEXANDER HOLMES, son of Alexander and Eliza A. Holmes, b. Kingston, Mass., 20 June, 1832. Fitted for college at a school at Kingston and under private tutor at Cambridge. At Law School in Cambridge in September, 1854. LL.B. 1856. Was for a time in law office of C. W. Loring, Esq., Boston, and admitted to Suffolk Bar November, 1857, but never practised. In 1858 entered office of the Fall River & Old Colony Railroad in Boston. Has not been heard of since then, but is believed to reside in Kingston; but I have failed to get any response to my letters.

HENRY BLATCHFORD HUBBARD, son of Hon. Samuel Hubbard and Mary Ann Coit, b. Boston, 8 Jan., 1833. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School. On account of weak eyes was away from college for fifteen months, but A.B. in 1857 out of course. 1855 in Dane Law School. For three years Clerk of Cambridge Water Works. 1859 health failed, he went to Colorado, where was attached to United States Coast Survey as Magnetic and Astronomical Assistant. (See notice of his services in Smithsonian Report.) 1861 returned, health unimproved, and went to his brother's, William C. Hubbard in Chicago, where he died of consumption, 13 Feb., 1862.

CHARLES WHITING HUNTINGTON, eldest son of Charles Phelps Huntington and Helen Sophia Mills, b. Northampton, 22 Sept., 1834. Fitted for college at public schools in Northampton. Taught school during winter term at Lancaster, Mass. August, 1854, entered his father's law office at Northampton. November, 1855, with C. T. & T. H. Russell in Boston. Law School March, 1856. At Ware in business for himself for a year. 1858 with J. B. Robb, Esq., in Boston. 1859 went into partnership with his father at Boston. For some years was attorney for Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad. His wife was a Miss Thayer, of Boston. He died at Quincy, Mass., 4 July, 1888.

BENJAMIN JOY JEFFRIES, son of John (H.U. 1815, M.D. 1819) and Ann Geyer Amory, b. Boston, 26 March, 1833. Fitted for college at the Boston Latin School. He writes of himself as follows:—

“In September of our graduating year I decided to follow my father's and grandfather's profession, and entered the Harvard Medical School, also joining the Tremont Medical School, which was practically the summer school of Harvard. I came besides under the special tuition of my father, with whom I lived where I do now, 15 Chestnut Street, Boston. In 1857 I took my medical degree and my A.M. degree from Harvard, and immediately became a Fellow of the Massachusetts Medical Society. In the winter of 1857-58 I went to Europe to continue my medical studies at Vienna. Leaving there in the spring of 1859, and after travelling as in the previous summer, came to Paris, where I studied a short time, and then went to Edinburgh, Dublin, and London. I returned home in the fall of 1859, and commenced practice with my father, following only diseases of the skin and diseases of the eye, these being what I had paid especial attention to whilst in Europe.

"The social and political unrest preceding the breaking out of the slavery rebellion was no time for the advancement of medical science. Prevented from going into the field, I did, as a member of the Corps of Cadets, the work they were called to do during the war. Being elected surgeon after garrison duty at Fort Warren, I was almost constantly employed as Acting Assistant Surgeon by the National Government, for the examination of volunteers. At the close of the Rebellion I was Post Surgeon at Fort Winthrop, Boston Harbor, being finally mustered out of service when the Post was given up.

"I immediately resumed my special professional work, and in 1866 was chosen Surgeon of the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, founded by my father in 1827, where I am still on the ophthalmic staff. I also had two other similar hospital appointments, which I held till quite recently; namely, at the Carney Hospital and the New England Hospital for Women and Children. In 1871 I gave a university course of lectures at Cambridge, on the anatomy and physiology of vision; also two other popular courses under the Boston Society of Natural History in the 'Lowell Free Courses.' For one term I was connected as university teacher with the Harvard Medical School. For one year I gave courses of lectures in my specialties at the Berkshire Medical College at Pittsfield, Mass. I have served many years on the Council of the Boston Society of Natural History, as also my term as Vice-President, and was on the Building Committee for their present structure.

"When studying in Europe, I was greatly impressed with the almost universal use of the more dangerous chloroform instead of safer ether; and I resolved, if opportunity ever offered, to endeavor to introduce the employment of the latter. This I was enabled to do at the meeting of the International Ophthalmological Congress in London, 1872. I then read a paper on the subject, and fully illustrated it by the exhibition of ether in the London hospitals, especially in ophthalmic surgery. From that time ether versus chloroform has fought its way as the survival of the fittest, and hence fatalities have greatly diminished.

"The study of the chromatic sense, apart from the sense of form, had always interested me; and as soon as Professor Holmgren, of Upsala, published in 1876 his method of detecting defects of this sense, I followed up the investigation of color-blindness, and showed the very practical bearing of the subject, incorporating my results in a book which has become the manual for examiners, and adopted by the government. By lectures, papers, and addresses I aroused public interest in the subject, and disseminated a knowledge of the dangers associated with the defect. By this means I succeeded in putting and keeping a law of control on the statute books of Massachusetts in reference to the railroads. The forms and methods of opposition which I had to contend with are but little known, and, if told, would be hardly credited. My work has, however, already induced action in other States of the Union.

"My endeavors at Washington for an international commission in recognition of the dangers, and the establishment of laws of control, caused action to be taken by our government in the navy, army, and merchant marine, and the incorporation of recommendations for protection, in the International Maritime Congress at Washington in 1889.

"Like other investigators, I also soon found and recognized the lack of education of the normal color-sense, even in our industrial communities, and set to work to introduce proper primary instruction by means of an amplification of Professor Hugo Magnus's Color Chart, now adopted by the Boston Public Schools. Some hours every day for many years have been stolen from a busy professional life to carry on and help others carry on these most practical reforms pro bono publico.

"Jan. 4, 1872, I married Marian, the elder daughter of Charles Franklin and Mary Harriot Shimmin. To us were born 5 Oct., 1877, Charles Shimmin, and 25 March, 1881, Marian. My wife died 12 Nov., 1888. My son takes this year his preliminary examination at Harvard, to there represent the sixth generation of his family."

JOHN GEORGE JOHNSON, son of Samuel and Susanna, b. Andover, Mass., 10 Oct., 1833. Fitted for college at Phillips Andover Academy. Was for two years at Dartmouth College. Entered Junior at Cambridge. For nine months was principal Warren Academy, Warren, Me. Studied medicine at Litchfield, Conn., in 1855, and afterwards with James R. Wood in New York City. In March, 1857, received degree M.D. Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York University. In 1857 Home Surgeon at Bellevue Hospital. Soon after settled in Brooklyn. Was appointed Surgeon in the Long Island College, and Demonstrator of Anatomy, where he now practises as physician and surgeon, and is surgeon to several corporations. Married in 1858 to Miss Ludlow.

JAMES CHEW JOHNSTON, JR., son of Dr. J. C. Johnston and Sophia H. Zane, b. Louisville, Ky., 25 July, 1835. Was fitted for college by Dr. Al Güntz, a German scholar of some distinction, who came from Germany at the request of the Duke of Wellington to be tutor to the Earl of Salisbury, and subsequently to this country, where he became president of Shelby College, Ky. Entered Junior. Studied law in Philadelphia for a time. After graduating, and when last heard from in 1874, was a lawyer at Louisville, Ky., a partner with E. H. McDonald.

WILLIAM JOHNSTON, son of Dr. J. C. and Sophia (Zane), b. Louisville, Ky., 4 June, 1833. Fitted for college by Dr. Al Güntz, and entered Junior. Has not engaged in any business. Was for a time on a cotton plantation in Arkansas. Has resided most of the time (except when he was Quartermaster with the rank of Colonel in the Confederate service) at Louisville, Ky. Married in 1857 to Miss Emily Ward, of Louisville.

JAMES BROWN KENDALL, b. Medfield, Mass., 11 Oct., 1834, only son of James A. and Maria B. Kendall. Fitted for college at Hopkins Classical School, Cambridge. For some time after graduating kept private classical school at Portsmouth, N.H. September, 1856, Dane Law School. LL.B. July, 1858. Was for a time in the law office of Hutchins & Wheeler in Boston, 1858. Admitted to Suffolk Bar February, 1859. In spring of 1859 formed a law partnership with our classmate Tucker. Office in Worcester, Mass. He died at Saxonville, Mass., 9 Oct., 1859, of typhoid fever. From an obituary notice which appeared in the Christian Register of 12 Nov., 1859, the following abstract is taken:—

“Mr. Kendall was deservedly a favorite with his associates. Sensitive and modest, yet possessed of manly independence, he bore himself among his intimates with a dignity which gained the respect and esteem, that make friendships lasting. Seldom have more sincere mourners gathered to express their sympathy with a bereaved and sorrowing family than the young men who came to pay the last tribute of respect to his memory, and to follow his earthly remains to their final resting-place. He was a true and steadfast friend, a kind and loving son, an affectionate brother. His loss will be long and keenly felt.”

ISAIAH KNOWLES, eldest son of Isaiah Knowles and Joanna Cole Snow, b. Truro, Mass., 4 Jan., 1833. Teacher in Sandwich Academy in fall of 1854. Entered law office of Dana & Cobb in Boston, December, 1855. In 1856 went to the East Indies for his health. Returned, and re-entered same office fall of 1857. Opened a law office in Boston on his own account, and died at Roxbury, 10 Jan., 1878.

THEODORE LANG, b. Camden, S.C., 29 Sept., 1832. Entered South Carolina College as Sophomore in 1850. Left on account of the Belly Rebellion, and entered our class as Junior in March, 1853. I have never been able to learn anything of Lang since graduation, except that I met him casually in Philadelphia in fall of 1863.

OLIVER SHEPHARD LELAND, son of George Leland and Hannah Shephard, b. New York, 29 Jan., 1833. Fitted for college at Lawrence Academy, Groton, and under John B. Felton and C. C. Felton. 1854 studied law with John C. Park, Boston. 1855 with James R. Whiting, in New York. Wrote and translated a number of plays from the French for different theatres. 1859 in business in New York with Mr. McLean. His wife was Ella D., daughter of L. Gaylord Clark, of New York, to whom he was married 6 Sept., 1859. Died at Waltham, Mass., 9 April, 1870.

THOMAS JACKSON LOTHROP, b. Taunton, 2 March, 1834, son of Cornelius W. and Eleanor L. Fitted for college at Bristol Academy. Taught school in Taunton during the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior winters. Sailed before Commencement, 1854, for Fayal, where he was tutor in Mr. Frederic Dabney's family for three years. In 1857 returned to Taunton, studied law with Hon. E. H. Bennett, was admitted to Bristol Bar, and practised law with Hon. John Daggett as partner. May, 1858, was admitted to the Iowa Bar at Lyons. In 1862 he enlisted in the Fourth Massachusetts Regiment Volunteers, and was appointed Quartermaster. Went with regiment to join Banks expedition, and served for some time as Brigade Quartermaster and Post Commissary at Brashear City. Mustered out with regiment in 1863, and resumed practice of law at Taunton. In 1866 was advised that his health required his giving up sedentary employment and he became interested in manufacturing, and was Treasurer of Taunton Tack Company. Is Vice-President and Factory Manager of the Atlas Tack Corporation. Was for nine years Treasurer of Bristol

County, and for nineteen years a member of School Committee of Taunton. Was Director in several banks and Bristol County Savings Bank. Has been much interested in the prohibitory temperance movement, and was President of the State Convention in 1881, and candidate for governor and other prohibitory, State, and national offices. Was a Representative to the General Court from Taunton at the session of 1864. Married August, 1858, to Miss Katherine P. Webster. Has five children,—one son, Arthur P. (H.U. 1882), and daughter, Harriet E., M.D. University of Zürich.

CHARLES RUSSELL LOWELL, son of Charles R. and Anna C., b. Boston, 2 Jan., 1835. Fitted for college at Boston Latin and English High Schools. Was a short time in Larkin & Stackpole's store, Boston. In summer of 1855 was in Ames machine shop at Chicopee, and afterwards in the rolling mills of Cooper, Hewitt & Co. at Trenton. His health became seriously impaired while there, and under the advice of his physician, he spent two years in foreign travel. On his return he went to Burlington, Ia., as Local Treasurer of the Burlington & Missouri Railroad. Thence to the Mount Savage Iron Works in Maryland. "Here the outbreak of the war found him ready and waiting for the opportunity to serve his country." He went to Washington, tendered his services to the government, and was appointed Captain in the Sixth Regular Cavalry. He served with the Army of the Potomac, and "for distinguished services at Williamsburg and Statersville" was recommended for Brevet Major in the regular army, and was assigned to duty as Aide on staff of General McClellan, and was with him during the Antietam campaign, where he went into action with Sedgwick's Division and had a horse shot under him, the scabbard of his sabre destroyed, and his clothing torn and cut by bullets. He himself was uninjured. In fall of 1862 was designated Colonel Second Massachusetts Cavalry, recruited it during the winter, and in April, 1863, went to Washington, where he commanded a cavalry force which guarded the approaches to Washington; and, while watching the raids of the rebel cavalry, he had many skirmishes with them, capturing several guns and many prisoners. During the Shenandoah campaign Lowell was in command of the brigade of regular cavalry, and in all the battles of that campaign he performed most signal and meritorious service, always being at the head of his columns and in the thickest of the fray. During one month's service he had thirteen horses shot under him. On 19 Oct., 1864, at the battle of Cedar Creek, while leading his men on a second charge upon the enemy, he was hit by a ball, which struck him in the side, and destroyed the action of his right lung, which collapsed, and, though urged to go to the rear, declined, saying "that he was able to ride, and could not stay away from the final charge." While at the head of his brigade, which led the final charge at the attack on Middletown, he was hit by a minie bullet, which passed through the spine, paralyzing the lower part of his body. "He was carried to a neighboring house. He lived till about eight o'clock the next morning (20 October), perfectly conscious, talking at intervals with those about him, sending tender messages to his family, arranging all the business affairs of his command, and regretting only that he could no longer live to serve 'the republic.'" For his brilliant services during the earlier part of this campaign he was recommended for promotion by General Sheridan; but the commission, although signed, was not received until after Lowell's death. So died one of the bravest and most capable officers among all those who died that their country might live. Assistant Secretary of War Dana writes, "I do not think that there was any officer in all the army so much beloved as Lowell." "We all shed tears," said Custer, "when we knew that we had lost him. It is the greatest loss the cavalry corps has sustained." "I do not think there was a quality," said Shéridan, "which I would have added to Lowell." He married in October, 1863, Josephine, daughter of Francis G. Shaw, by whom he had one daughter, Carlotta R., b. after her father's death.

JOHN FRANCIS McEVOY, son of Hugh and Bridget Elizabeth McEvoy, b. Boston, 9 May, 1834. Fitted for college in Nashua and Lowell grammar and high schools and private school of George B. Jewett. March, 1855, in law office of Abbott & Brown, Lowell. Subsequently practised law on his own account at Lowell. City Solicitor of Lowell from 1870-74. He had considerable musical taste, and while in college played the organ and conducted the choir at the Catholic Church on Concord Avenue. He died unmarried, after a lingering illness, in St. John's Hospital, Lowell, 9 Nov., 1883.

MARCUS CATO McLEMORE, b. Tallahassee, 10 Feb., 1834. After graduating, was eighteen months in Europe, and after returning was admitted to bar, and practised law at San Antonio, Tex., and is one of the first criminal lawyers in Galveston, Tex., where he resides. Married 1861 (?) Miss M. Morris, and has several children. Was Captain and Major in the Confederate service.

EDWARD CONRAD McLURE, son of Thomas and Ann F. McLure, b. Newark, N.J., 19 Aug., 1834. Entered Sophomore South Carolina College, 1850. Senior, left on account of combination against Steward's Hall. Entered Junior year Harvard University 1855. Studied law with McAliley & McLure at Chesterville, S.C. Admitted to South Carolina Bar 1859. Married to Louisa L. Neely, of Savannah, Ga. 1859 Aide to Governor of South Carolina, with rank of Colonel. 1874 attorney at law, Dallas, Tex. For some six years was Appointment Clerk in the Post-office Department at Washington, where he died 28 Feb., 1889, of cerebral hemorrhage.

DAVID HENRY MORDECAI, son of Moses Cohen Mordécai and Isabel Lyons, b. 13 Nov., 1833, Charleston, S.C. Entered Junior South Carolina College 1851. Left on account of the "Belly Rebellion," and entered Harvard University Junior, March, 1853. Left April, 1854, on account of ill-health. 1855 studied law with James L. Petigue, Charleston, S.C. Died at Nice, Italy, 22 Jan., 1859, of consumption. "He was," says the Charleston Mercury in a notice of his death, "in point of talents and attainments, perhaps the first man of his age in the State."

WILLIAM CUSHING PAINE, son of Charles J. and Fanny J. Paine, b. Waltham, Mass., 26 Aug., 1834. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School. Left college in June, 1854, and went to West Point, where he graduated June, 1858. Stationed at West Point till March, 1860, when he went to New Bedford, Second Lieutenant United States Corps Engineers. First Lieutenant 6 Aug., 1862. 3 March, 1863, Captain. Resigned on account of ill-health 6 Nov., 1863. Acted as assistant engineer in construction of fort at Clarke's Point, N.B., Port Schuyler, N.Y., and also at Portsmouth, N.H. Since his resignation did not engage in active business. Was very fond of chess, and was President of the Boston Chess Club. He died of suffusion of blood on the brain 14 Sept., 1889, at his home at Pride's Crossing. 20 Sept., 1860, he married Miss Hannah P. Perry. He left several children.

GORHAM PARKS, son of Gorham (H.U. 1813) and Mary Ann Parks, b. Bangor, 28 Dec., 1832. Fitted for college at Hopkins Classical School, Cambridge. In November, 1854, private tutor at Stockbridge. In 1855 studied law with W. W. Scrugham at Yonkers, was for some time with Nye & McCraw and Bromley & Bouvè, lawyers, and was admitted to New York Bar in 1856. Since then practised law in New York, residing in Brooklyn till 1874, when he was appointed assistant in the clerk's office of the Court of Appeals at Albany, N.Y., and in 1889 was appointed clerk. Married in December, 1890, to Mrs. Annie Ghio. Has two daughters.

WILLIAM GASTON PEARSON, son of Joseph and Mary Worthington, b. at Brentwood, 1834, did not write in the Class Book; and I have been unable to learn much concerning him, except that in July, 1855, he was studying law in San Francisco, and in May, 1856, engaged in farming at Brentwood (near Washington, D.C.). His health was poor and he travelled extensively, but without avail; for he died at Oakland, Cal., 19 Jan., 1861, of consumption, aged 26 years, 9 months, 22 days.

WILLIAM STEVENS PERRY, the eldest and only surviving son of the late Stephen and Katharine Whittemore (Stevens) Perry, b. Providence, R.I., 22 Jan., 1832. Educated in the private and public schools of the city of his birth, he passed from the Providence High School, then under the charge of Professor Albert Harkness, LL. D., to enter Brown University, whence he migrated to Harvard College, entering as Sophomore the class of 1854. He was graduated with his class. After graduation he spent several months at the Virginia Theological Seminary near Alexandria, and then—his family having removed at the time of his entering Harvard to Watertown, Mass.—returned home to take charge as a candidate for Holy Orders and a lay reader of an effort to found an Episcopal church in the adjoining town of Newton. The parish of Grace Church, Newton, was organized in his father's house; and he was the vestry-clerk, the Sunday-school superintendent, and lay reader of its earliest years. In the mean time he prosecuted his theological studies under the direction of the Rev. John S. Stone, D.D., of Brookline, and the Rev. Alexander H. Vinton, D.D., of Boston. He was ordered deacon at Grace Church (the temporary chapel), Newton, 29 March, 1857, by Bishop Eastburn, of Massachusetts. He was advanced to the priesthood by the same prelate in St. Paul's Church, Boston, 7 April, 1858. He was assistant at St. Paul's, Boston, 1857-58; rector of St. Luke's, Nashua, N.H., 1858-61; of St. Stephen's, Portland, Me., 1861-63; of St. Michael's, Litchfield, Conn., 1864-69; and of Trinity, Geneva, Western New York, 1869-76. Early in 1876 he was tendered the Presidency of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio, which he declined; and shortly after he was unanimously elected to the Presidency of Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., which he accepted. He had previously served as Professor of History in the same institution (without salary) 1871-74. He remained at the head of Hobart until his election to the episcopate. He was a deputy from the Diocese of New Hampshire to the General Convention of 1859,—the first held subsequent to his ordination; from the Diocese of Maine in 1862; and from the Diocese of Western New York in 1871. He was appointed an Assistant Secretary to the House of Deputies in 1862, and was Secretary of the Convention from 1865 to 1876. He was associated by the Convention of 1859 with the celebrated Rev. Dr. Francis Leslie Hawks in the preparation and publication of an annotated edition of the early records of the General Convention. One volume in octavo, under the joint editorship of Dr. Hawks and Mr. Perry, appeared in 1861; but the breaking out of the Civil War interrupted the further prosecution of the work, which was, however, finally issued under the sole editorship of Dr. William Stevens Perry in 1874, and re-issued in 1888. In 1868 Dr. Perry was appointed "Historiographer" of the American Church in succession to the late Dr. F. L. Hawks. He still retains this position.

In 1862 he married on the 15th of January in Rosse Chapel, Gambier, Ohio, Sara Abbott Woods, youngest daughter of the Rev. Thomas Mather Smith, D.D., some time President of Kenyon College.

Mr. Perry received his A.M. in course from his own University (Harvard) in 1857; and an ad eundem M.A. from the University of Bishops' College, Lennoxville, Canada, cast in 1859 on occasion of his preaching the "Convocation" sermon. In 1869 he received the degree of D.D. from Trinity College, Hartford. He was made LL.D. by William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., in 1876, on his accession to the Presidency of Hobart College. He received the degree of D.C.L. from the University of Bishops' College, Lennoxville, in 1885, also from the University of King's College, Windsor, Nova Scotia, in 1886, and from the University of the South in 1893. At the Encænica of the University of Oxford, Eng., June, 1888, he received the honorary degree of D.D. Oxon., an honor shared only with two other living American divines, the Rt. Rev. William Croswell Doane, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Albany, and the Rt. Rev. Henry Codman Potter, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of New York. In 1887 he was unanimously elected by the Synod of Nova Scotia "Lord Bishop" of that Diocese, the oldest British colonial see; but he declined this honor,—one never before tendered to any other than one of English birth and allegiance.

Bishop Perry is by virtue of the Revolutionary services of his great-grandfather, Lieutenant Abel Perry of the Massachusetts Continental Line, an hereditary member of the Society of the Cincinnati, and has been for a number of years a Chaplain-general of the Order. As such he preached before the Society in St. Paul's Chapel, New York City, on occasion of the centennial observance of the inauguration of George Washington as President of the United States, 28 April, 1889. This discourse, printed in various editions, appears in the sumptuous official record of the observance of this day, which is said to be the handsomest volume ever printed in the United States. He is also President of the Iowa State Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and a member of the New York Society of that body. He is also a member of the Society of the War of 1812 and of the Naval Order of the United States. He was unanimously elected Bishop of Iowa in May, 1876, receiving the unanimous confirmation of the Standing Committees and the Bishops, and was consecrated to the episcopate in Trinity Church, Geneva, N.Y., 10 Sept., 1876. During his episcopate he has seen the number of his clergy, his churches, his congregations, increase nearly threefold. He has founded two large church schools at Davenport, Ia. One is Saint Katharine's Hall for girls (named for his beloved mother), now (1894) in its tenth year. The other is Kemper Hall for boys, which is nine years old. He is at present busied in establishing a church hospital in his see city, having just purchased a most desirable property for this purpose.

Bishop Perry has attended and taken part in the "Lambeth Conferences" of 1878 and 1888; and his printed account of the first of these meetings elicited the special commendation of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Archibald Campbell Tait, as the best record of the Conference that had appeared in print. His story of the Conference of 1888 has also been privately printed. He was also an interested member of the Alt-Katholik Conference at Bonn in 1875, at which gathering he made the acquaintance of the celebrated Dr. Ignatius von Döllinger, whom he subsequently visited in Munich. He has crossed the ocean ten times, and is well known in Great Britain, on the continent, and in the colonial possessions of England.

Bishop Perry is probably the most voluminous writer of the American Episcopal bench. A list of his separate publications, including at least a score of volumes in quarto, octavo, and duodecimo, comprises fully one hundred and twenty-five titles. His writings are chiefly historical, though he has published sermons preached in Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's, London, and other cathedrals and churches abroad, and also sketches of travel, and contributions to general literature. His private library contains over fifteen thousand volumes, as many valuable pamphlets, and over one hundred volumes of unpublished manuscripts.

During Bishop Perry's episcopate, the values of the church property in Iowa have increased from a little more than $300,000 to upwards of $1,370,000.

Bishop Perry received the thanks of the State of Virginia for his publication of a quarto volume of "Papers relating to the History of the Church in Virginia." For his five quarto volumes of "Historical Collections of the American Colonial Church" and his three annotated volumes in octavo of "A Half-century of the Legislation of the American Episcopal Church" he received the thanks of the General Convention of the American Episcopal Church. He is a member of a large number of the State Historical Societies, of the American Ethnological Society, and of the American Historical Association. He was one of the three bishops who prepared and reported "The Standard Prayer Book of 1892," and will possess one of the twelve vellum copies of this work from the De Vinne Press, presented to the Archives of the Church, the Presiding Bishop, the President of the House of Deputies, and the members of the Committee by Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, of New York.

WILLIAM JAMES POTTER, b. Dartmouth, Mass., 1 Feb., 1830, one of nine children of William and Annie Potter. Fitted for college at Bridgewater Normal School and Bristol Academy, studying with Henry B. Wheelwright. For some time after graduating he was submaster in the Cambridge High School. In 1857 he passed some time in European travel. For two years he studied in the Divinity School. In December, 1859, he was ordained pastor of the First Congregational Society in New Bedford, where he remained thirty-one years. In 1863 he was drafted into the army, the only clergyman, so far as known, who was drafted, and, on arriving at Washington, was detailed as an inspector of hospitals and prisons, and was appointed chaplain in one of the hospitals there 30 Sept., 1863, where he continued until his discharge from service, 10 May, 1864. He was at one time editor of the Index and President of the Free Religious Association. In 1863 he married Miss Elizabeth C. Babcock, by whom he had a daughter, Anna Acker, and son, Alfred C. (A.B. H.U. 1889). He died suddenly of heart disease, 21 Dec., 1893, at Boston, where he had come to attend the marriage of one of his family. He lectured extensively upon religious subjects, and published a number of sermons in pamphlet form, among them discourses on "Inner Light and Culture," 1861; "The Voice of the Draft," 1863; "The National Tragedy"; Four Sermons on Abraham Lincoln, 1865; "Reason and Revelation," 1868; "Doctrine of Pre-existence and the Fourth Gospel," 1868; Discourse on Charles Sumner, 1874; and many others. The only published book of his was "Twenty-five Sermons in Twenty-five Years"; but there is now in preparation another volume of his sermons, soon to be published with a memoir by Francis Ellingwood Abbot. No meeting of the class has been held since Potter's death, but the expression of his loss to the class and his many friends would have been heart-felt and sincere. He was greatly beloved by all who came in contact with him for his great sweetness of disposition and winning temperament without weakness; and his ripe culture, keen philosophic grasp of many religious subjects, "gave," in the words of another, "rare completeness to his character, and made him a well-rounded man."

HENRY CONANT PRENTISS, son of William C. and Asenath S., b. Northampton, Mass., 10 April, 1832. Fitted for college at Northampton Academy and under Lewis J. Dudley and Rufus Ellis. Entered Junior. For three months after graduation taught in the South Hampton Academy. Studied medicine in the office of Drs. D. & J. Thompson in Northampton for three years. In 1857 M.D. from Berkshire Medical College. For six years was Apothecary in the Worcester Lunatic Hospital. In 1864 became Chief Clerk on the Board of State Charities, which position he has held ever since. Is at present Deputy Inspector of Institutions. Member of the Hampshire and Worcester District Medical Societies. Has been twice married, his first wife being Clara J. Howe, his second Catherine H. White. Has two daughters. Resides in Roxbury.

ALFRED HAMPTON PRESTON, son of John S. and Caroline M. Preston, b. Abingdon, Va., 3 June, 1834. Was fitted for college by James C. Carter. Entered Junior. A.M. 1859. Spent all the time after graduation in traveling till 16 Jan., 1859, when he died of consumption at Rome, Italy.

WILLIAM ARTHUR PRESTON, son of John and Elizabeth French, b. New Ipswich, N.H., 31 Jan., 1834.

Fitted for college at New Ipswich Academy. After graduating was in his father's law office, and for a time was in Harvard Law School. After leaving the school, he returned to New Ipswich, and settled as a lawyer, but practised but little, as he was soon connected with the New Ipswich Bank, where he has remained either as Cashier, Treasurer, or President ever since. Was Assistant Clerk of New Hampshire Senate from 1859-63, and member of the House of Representatives in 1869-70. Since 1874 has been a Trustee of Appleton Academy, and has had charge of the school. Married in 1859 to Miss Martha M. Granger, and has two sons, John (H.U. 1882) and Frederic.

THOMAS PARKER PROCTOR, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Parker) Proctor, b. Chelmsford, Mass., 27 June, 1831. His mother, Elizabeth Parker, was a native of New Boston, N.H., while on his father's side the Proctor family during seven generations have lived on the same homestead in South Chelmsford. His great-grandfather was an officer in the War of the Revolution, and his father was an officer in the War of 1812. Mr. Proctor attended school in Chelmsford, under the instruction of Emerson C. Whitney, a good teacher and a valued friend, and, after fitting for college at Phillips Andover Academy, entered Yale College in 1850. While pursuing his college course, his old teacher and friend, then living in Middletown, N.Y., in charge of the Classical Department of the State Academy, was stricken with his last sickness; and he left college to look after the comfort of his latter days. On the death of Mr. Whitney his position was offered to Mr. Proctor, and its duties were performed by him for a single year. In the mean time he kept up his college studies, and in 1853 entered the Junior class at Harvard, and graduated with a part at Commencement in 1854. In the year of his graduation he entered the law office of Charles Tracey in New York City, and was admitted to the bar in Brooklyn on examination in the latter part of 1854. In 1855 he entered the Harvard Law School. Engaged a part of the time while there in assisting Professor

Parsons in the preparation of notes to his law books, and graduated in 1856. He was admitted to the Suffolk Bar 6 May, 1856, and soon after became associated with Harvey Jewell, with whom he remained two years. He then practised alone until 1862, when he formed a connection with William Wirt Warren, which continued until the death of Mr. Warren in 1880. From 1880-84 he was the senior member of the law firm of Proctor, Brigham & Tappan; and after again practising alone four years became the senior member of the firm of Proctor, Tappan & Warren, which still continues. Mr. Warren is the son of his earlier partner. Mr. Proctor has always devoted himself assiduously to his professional duties, and, with the exception of the office of trial justice at Jamaica Plain for one year, has never accepted a public position. He married 27 May, 1857, Lucena Sarah, daughter of Amos and Mary Spalding, of Billerica, Mass., who died 1 May, 1868, leaving three children,—George B., Sarah L., and Mary Bessie, the eldest, George B., dying 3 March, 1869. He married again 28 April, 1870, Sarah (Miller) Street, of Boston, who died 16 Dec., 1879; and a third time, 7 June, 1883, Abby, daughter of Southworth and Abby Shurtleff Shaw, of Boston. His residence is at Jamaica Plain.

GEORGE PUTNAM, son of George (H.U. 1826) and Elizabeth Ann Putnam, b. Roxbury, Mass., 28 Oct., 1834. Fitted for college at the Roxbury Latin School. Studied engineering in the fall of 1854 in the office of Parker, Stearns & Sanborn in Charlestown. Entered Dane Law School in 1856. LL.B. 1858. Was in Hon. P. W. Chandler's law office for a while. Admitted to Suffolk Bar September, 1858, and opened a law office in Boston in September, 1858. Became partner with William G. Russell, Esq., in 1874. Married in 1860 to Miss Harriet Lowell, and has three sons—William L. (H.U. 1882), Charles R. L. (H.U. 1891), James L. (H.U. 1892)—and two daughters. Has never held any office, political or other, but has been very successful in his chosen profession of the law.

ROBERT (ALOYSIUS) HENRY RENSHAW, fifth son of Benjamin Renshaw and Francesca de Luna y Medicis, b. 26 April, 1834, at Caracas, Venezuela. Fitted for college at St. Mary's College and Mr. Prentiss's school at Baltimore. Entered Sophomore. Studied law in the office of J. Nevett Steele in Baltimore. Admitted to Baltimore Bar 1857. During war, was in the Confederate service, with the rank of Captain in the Quartermaster's Department with the army of Northern Virginia. Has travelled extensively through the West Indies, South America, and Europe. Has been three times married. First wife, daughter of Thomas Carter; his second, daughter of Dr. Charles Carter; and third, a daughter of General W. Carter, Wickham. Has four sons and two daughters. Since 1883 engaged in farming pursuits in Boyce, Clark County, Va.

EDMUND RHETT, son of Robert Barnell Rhett and Elizabeth Burnet, b. Charleston, S.C., 19 Nov., 1833. Entered the Sophomore Class of South Carolina College in 1850. "Took an honorable dismissal, [as he writes himself] with one hundred and ten others, December, 1852, on account of the stupidity of some superannuated Trustees and broken down Judges, and entered in March, 1853, the Junior Class, half advanced, at Harvard, Mass." Studied law at Charleston for some time. When legislature of South Carolina passed a secession ordinance in November, 1860, he raised a company for the defence of the State, and served with it at home until spring of 1862, when his health failed, and he was obliged to give up. Our classmate Winthrop writes of him: "He died of consumption, 29 July, 1871, at the residence of his brother, Colonel Alfred Rhett, in Cordesville, S.C. He was for a long time assistant editor of the Charleston Mercury, and a very earnest and active advocate of secession doctrines; but, recognizing the utter failure of the South to achieve her independence, he was one of the first to urge his fellow-Carolinians not to protract the struggle. His letters to one or two Northern friends after the conclusion of the Civil War were untinged with bitterness, as he described the altered condition of things at Charleston ; and he labored hard to support his parents whose property had almost entirely disappeared during the struggle."

TRUMAN HENRY SAFFORD, son of Truman Hopson Safford and Louisa Parker, b. 6 Jan., 1836, at Royalton, Vt. Fitted for college at Hopkins School, Cambridge, and private tuition. September, 1854, Assistant Computer and Observer in Cambridge Observatory and Nautical Almanac Office to 1863. Assistant Observer 1863 to 1866. December, 1865, Professor and Director Dearborn Observatory, Chicago. Lectured at Williams College in 1874, and at Beloit 1875. 1866 Associate Royal Astronomical Society, London. 1874 associated with office of explorations and surveys west of 100th meridian under Lieutenant Wheeler. Edited volume of Annals of Harvard College Observatory 1867. 1873 prepared catalogue of nine hundred and eighty-one stars, published by United States Government. Has contributed many articles to astronomical periodicals and Proceedings of American Academy. Member of the German Astronomische Gesellschaft, and engaged with them 1868 to 1871 in a great general catalogue of the stars. Was for some time Professor of Physics and Librarian at Williams College. Field Professor of Astronomy at Williams. Ph.D. Williams 1878. In 1860 married to Miss E. M. Bradbury, of Cambridge. Has six children. One son, Charles Louis, studied music at Cambridge, and graduates in 1894.

JAMES SAVAGE, son of James Savage and Elizabeth Otis Stillman, b. Boston, 21 April, 1832. Fitted for college at the Boston Latin School. Sailed for Europe in the fall of 1854. Returned in 1857, and engaged in farming at Ashland, Mass. Raised a company of volunteers in the spring of 1861. Appointed Captain. Attached to Second Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, Colonel Gordon. Promoted to be Major in same regiment 13 June, 1862, and 17 Sept., 1862, to Lieutenant Colonel. Was wounded in the right arm and leg at the battle of Cedar Mountain, Va., 9 Aug.,

1862, while in command of his men ; was taken prisoner by the Confederates, and carried to a hospital at Charlottesville, Va., where he died 22 Oct., 1862. The following abstract is taken from a discriminating and just eulogy which appeared in the Boston Daily Advertiser of 7 Nov., 1862:—

“In all its [the regiment’s] fortunes, whether successful or adverse, Captain Savage bore a part. He was never absent from his post of duty. He was as gentle as he was brave. He had a heart of feminine tenderness and a character of feminine purity. His profession never made him hard or coarse, but only brought out more distinctly and markedly the fine qualities which, in times of peace, had made him so dear to his kindred and friends. He was a fine combination of the gentleman, the Christian, and the soldier, carrying into the profession of arms, and maintaining amid scenes of blood and violence, the high sense of duty, the disinterestedness, the devotion which insure confidence and respect in the avocations of peace.”

GEORGE WARD SEWALL, son of Edmund Quincy and Caroline (Ward) Sewall, b. Scituate, Mass., 7 Feb., 1834. Fitted for college at public and private schools of Scituate and at home. Was for a time engineer on Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroad. Was for a time in Milwaukee. 1860 engaged as engineer in laying out Eastern Shore Railroad at Salisbury, Md. 1862 enlisted as private Forty-seventh Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers. Went to New Orleans, and was detailed Assistant Engineer on fortifications there, under Major Houston, Chief Engineer Department of Gulf. After serving his time in army, he continued with Houston for a while as his assistant. Since the war has practised civil engineering in various parts of the country, with occasional branching out into other kinds of business. Married in 1872 to Miss Cottingham, and has had six children. At present living in Chicago.

EDWARD LOWELL SHERMAN, son of Abraham P. and Mary Sherman, b. Cambridge, Mass., 16 June, 1833.

In 1859 with Solomon Gordon in Boston, attending principally to patent cases. Was for a long time attorney for various sewing-machine companies. Later practised law in New York City, living in Orange, N.J., for twenty years, where he died 31 Aug., 1893, of phthisis-pulmonalis."

WILLIAM DUDLEY SLACK, son of Lewis E. Slack, b. Roxbury, 18 Feb., 1834. Fitted for college in Roxbury Latin School. Kept school at Methuen during winter of Senior year. 1854 to 1875 was in the iron business at Brady's Bend, Pa. In 1856 was on the staff of Governor Pollock, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. 1875 was in charge of the Land Department of Little Rock & Fort Smith railway, living at Little Rock, and subsequently in charge of the railway. Since 1886 in charge of the property of the Homœopathic Medical and Surgical Hospital and Dispensary at Pittsburg, Pa. He was married December, 1857, to Miss Mary E. Walker, of Butler, Pa., and has four children. He writes: "At different times I have filled with credit the important public offices of School Director and Overseer of the Poor. In 1866 was offered Congressional nomination in a sure Republican district, but declined the honor. This, as far as I know, is the nearest I ever came to holding any position of national importance. In 1882 was nominated for Governor of Arkansas on Republican ticket, but was not elected; that is, as far as I ever heard."

WILLIAM STRUTT SLATER, third son of George B. Slater and Lydia Robinson, b. Webster, Mass., 4 Oct., 1834. Fitted for college in South Berwick Academy, Maine. Upon graduating he entered the firm of Samuel Slater & Sons, cotton and woollen manufacturers at Webster, Mass., where he continued till his death, which took place at Webster, 27 Dec., 1890. He was married to Miss Katherine C., daughter of George Hodges, of Oxford, at Oxford, 1 March, 1866.

SAMUEL EMERSON SMITH, son of Samuel E. Smith and Louisa S. Fuller, b. Augusta, Me., 31 Aug., 1833. April, 1855, studying law in his father's office at Wiscasset, Me. In 1856 was in the law office of Benjamin A. G. Fuller at Augusta, Me. Admitted to practise law in 1857, and opened an office in Wiscasset. In 1871 was elected State Senator from the Lincoln District, by the Democratic party, over Edwin Frye. He died (unmarried) at Wiscasset, 21 Jan., 1881, after a lingering illness, which he bore uncomplainingly and with great fortitude. His loss was deeply felt in the community where he always resided and where he was highly esteemed.

GEORGE WALES SOREN, son of John Johnston and Fanny (Wales) Soren, b. Roxbury, 8 Feb., 1833. Fitted for college at Roxbury Latin School. Kept school in Utica, N.Y., for a year. Studied law in office of John J. Clark. Dane Law School September, 1856. LL.B. 1858. Admitted to Suffolk Bar in 1858. In December, 1860, admitted to New York Bar. Was in the office of David Dudley Field till 1864. Was attached to a commission for revising the revenue laws in the service of the government, and commenced independent practice. Was afterward with Messrs. Lowry & Transoli, and subsequently with Porter, Lowry & Stone. In 1883 retired from active business.

CHARLES EDWARD STETSON, son of Amos W. and Susanna Curtis, b. at Braintree, Mass., 1 Oct., 1835. Fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy. Entered Sophomore. Was for a time submaster in high school at Charlestown, Mass., and was reported to have been teacher in the high school at Braintree. I have failed to learn anything more about him, as no answer has been received to letters which have been written him.

FOSTER SWIFT, eighth son of Joseph G. and Louisa M. Swift, b. Geneva, N.Y., 31 Oct., 1833. Graduated at Geneva College in 1852. Studied law for a while in the office of Judge William Kent, and entered Harvard University March, 1853. October, 1854, in the Medical School of New York City. 1857 degree of M.D. Columbia College. He was taken prisoner at Sedley Church, where, with other surgeons, he remained to attend the wounded after retreat of the loyal troops. He was Assistant Professor of Obstetrics, Attending Physician to St. Luke's Hospital, Professor of Skin Diseases Bellevue Hospital in New York, Professor of Obstetrics Long Island Hospital Medical College in Brooklyn, N.Y. He married in January, 1863, Miss Fitzhugh, of Genesee, N.Y. He died on the Island of Santa Cruz 10 May, 1875.

AUSTIN WHITE THOMPSON, son of Peleg Pierce Thompson and Pamela White, b. 22 May, 1834, Pelham, Mass. Fitted for college at the Collegiate Institute and with Rev. Rufus Ellis at Northampton, Mass. Entered class in Junior year 1852. In fall of 1854 studied medicine with his uncle, Daniel Thompson, at Northampton. In the Harvard Medical School 1855-56-57. M.D. 1857. October, 1857, was Assistant Superintendent Massachusetts Lunatic Hospital at Northampton. Subsequently practised on his own account, and eventually established a retreat for the insane at Northampton (called Shady Lawn retreat), which he continued to conduct with much success until his death of consumption, occurring 11 July, 1889. Was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and for 1865-66 was President of the Hampshire County Medical Society. He was married three times. His first wife was Miss Caroline A. Taylor. His second was Mrs. Orleana Baker; and his third Miss Elizabeth North, who, with a daughter, the child of his first wife, survives him.

CHARLES THORNDIKE, son of Augustus and Henrietta, b. Boston, 24 June, 1834. Fitted for college under a private tutor at Paris. Entered Junior. A.M. 1857. Entered Cambridge Law School 1855. LL.B. 1857. Admitted to Suffolk Bar 1857. Was in office of Elias Merwin, Esq., for a while. In 1869 partner with E. I. Browne, Esq., in Boston. Married in 1862 to Miss LeRoy Edgar, of New York. Has one son, Augustus (H.U. 1884, and H.M.S., M.D. 1888).

He was largely instrumental in raising the funds for building the new club house of the Hasty Pudding Club and in promoting its present flourishing condition.

WILLIAM THORNDIKE, b. Beverly, Mass., 17 April, 1835. He was the son of Albert, formerly President of the Eastern Railroad and of the Beverly Bank, and Joanna Batchelder (Lovett) Thorndike. He was a nephew of William Thorndike (H.C. 1813), and a descendant of the eighth generation from John Thorndike, who came to New England in 1632 or 1633, and was the ancestor of all the Harvard graduates of that name.

He received his early education in Beverly, being prepared for college at the Beverly Academy, then under the charge of Issachar Lefavour (Amherst 1842). He entered fairly in the Freshman Class, and maintained a respectable rank throughout the course. Neither at school or in college was he remarkable for scholarship in stated studies; but he had great fondness and taste for literature, and was an omnivorous reader.

He entered freely into the social life of college, was popular with his fellow-students, and was a member of the Porcellian, the Hasty Pudding, and other leading clubs. He was also, as during his whole life, much devoted to music, and was chorister of the Hasty Pudding.

On graduation he entered vigorously into the study of medicine in the Harvard and the Boston schools, was at different times on the staff of the Massachusetts General and the Rainsford Island Hospitals, took his doctor's degree in 1857, became a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and started in practice in his native town. Here, besides attending to his growing practice, he gave much time to the affairs of the town and of the First Parish Church, Unitarian, of which he became a member. He also continued his musical pursuits in Beverly and the neighboring city of Salem. At this time he also acquired the interest in Freemasonry which he always retained.

In August, 1862, he was commissioned, at the request of Colonel Wells of the Thirty-fourth Massachusetts, Assistant Surgeon of that regiment. In this service he passed fifteen months in a manner to win honorable mention, but without being called upon to attend to the casualties of any important engagement. He was recommended for promotion on the ground of efficiency, and in November, 1863, was commissioned Surgeon of the Thirty-ninth Massachusetts, succeeding Dr. C. G. Page (H.C. 1852). Here he had more active duty, and performed it with great ability. Few regiments met with more disasters than those which required his aid in the Thirty-ninth.

He remained in service until the end of the war, and then returned for a while to his practice in Beverly, resuming his old interests in town and parish affairs.

Early in 1866 he removed to Milwaukee, where he passed the remainder of his life as one of the best known and skilful physicians in the city, and acquired a large circle of personal friends. He was a prominent member and an officer of the Unitarian church, and a charter member of the Wisconsin Commandery of the Loyal Legion. He also preserved his interest in musical and Masonic affairs, and was a member of the Wisconsin Lodge of Masons and active in the Arion Musical Club, of which he was one of the founders and for a while the President.

He died of pneumonia, contracted from exposure in his professional work, on 29 Jan., 1887. His funeral was conducted by members of the Unitarian church, the Grand Army, the Loyal Legion, and the Arion Club. The resolutions passed by the Loyal Legion contained the following words:—

"In the prime of early manhood he served his country well, marching with his gallant regiment from the Rappahannock to the James, and thence to the final surrender at Appomattox. Present at many a hard fought field, ministering to the needs of the wounded and stricken, and shunning no danger which fell to the lot of his comrades, he won their faith and trust. In civil life for nearly twenty years he has been prominent in our midst,—years of devoted service to his patients and of usefulness and honor to the community. He stood in his profession a physician of marked ability; in himself a man of rare culture, courtesy, and refinement."

He married 17 April, 1862, Martha Eliza, daughter of George Abbot, of Beverly, and had three sons: Paul (H.C. 1884), a Boston physician, who married the youngest daughter of General W. T. Sherman; Abbot, who married a daughter of Byron Kilbourn, a grand-daughter of one of the founders of Milwaukee; and William (H.C. 1892).

TITUS SALTER TREDICK, son of Jonathan M. and Mary F. S., b. Portsmouth, N.H., 4 July, 1834. Fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, and entered Sophomore year September, 1851. Was in the Calcutta trade for many years with W. F. Parott, of Boston, making many voyages to Ceylon, Madras, etc. He travelled extensively in foreign lands and in South America. Married in 1872 Miss Bailey, daughter of Adoniram T. Bailey, United States Navy. Has one daughter. Has twice represented Portsmouth in New Hampshire legislature, and was a member of convention to revise New Hampshire constitution. Director in the Salmon Falls and Cocheco Manufacturing Companies, and President of Cottage Hospital and Home for Children at Portsmouth. Of late years has not engaged in business, passing his time in travelling.

PAYSON ELIOT TUCKER, son of Eliot P. and Charlotte W. Tucker, b. Dorchester, Mass., 16 May, 1834. Fitted for college at Hopkins School, Cambridge. Left college at end of Sophomore year, dissolving his connection, but was permitted by special vote of Faculty to rejoin class in October of Senior year, and entered, making up studies of Junior year, but without privilege of taking any rank. In fall of 1854 studied law with Harvey Carleton, Esq., at Chesterfield, N.H. In 1856 was a law student in office of Bangs & Ketchum, New York. Was admitted to New York Bar October, 1856. In fall of 1857 entered Harvard Law School, and was for some months there. In spring of 1858 returned to Bangs & Ketchum's office, and remained there till early in 1859, when he went to Worcester, where he formed a partnership with our classmate, Kendall, which was soon dissolved by Kendall's death. In August, 1861, joined the army as Second Lieutenant, Company F, Sixteenth Massachusetts Regiment. Except for a while on recruiting service in Boston, he shared all the vicissitudes and was in all the battles with the regiment, including the seven days' fight near Richmond. Shortly after the battle of Malvern Hill, while acting as Adjutant of the regiment, he was prostrated with malarial fever, and compelled to resign. In 1864 resumed law practice in Boston, and was for some years a partner with the Hon. B. W. Harris. Was Representative to the General Court from the Twentieth Suffolk District in 1878 and 1879. Was Local Attorney for the United States in Boston in the Court of Alabama Claims. Married June, 1889, to Miss Adelaide T. Hermann, of St. Louis. Has three children.

HENRY VAN BRUNT, son of G. J. Van Brunt and E. P. Bradlee, b. Boston, 5 Sept., 1832. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School. Was for two years with George Snell in Boston, then with Detlef Lienan until breaking out of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the navy as Clerk to Commodore Goldsboro of the North Atlantic Blockading Squadron with rank of Lieutenant, and participated in all the naval operations on coasts of Virginia and North Carolina. After nearly two years' service was called home by the death of his father, Commodore Van Brunt, who commanded the frigate "Minnesota" in the celebrated engagement of the "Merrimac" and "Monitor" in Hampton Roads. Formed partnership with William R. Ware, and had an office in Boston. They were the architects of Memorial Hall, Weld Hall, Harvard Medical School; and they built the new east wing of the College Library, including the first book stack ever erected in this country. In 1883 this partnership was dissolved, and one formed with F. M. Howe, and an office established in Kansas City, where he removed his family in 1887, and where he still remains. They were the architects of the Electricity Building of the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893. In 1869 married Miss A. M. Osborn, of Baltimore. Has six children, one of whom, Charles Gershom, graduated at Harvard 1892. He has made some ventures in the field of literature, in the direction of a literary exposition of architecture as a fine art from the point of view of an architect in active practice. These papers have appeared in the Atlantic and Century magazines, and are about to be issued in book form under the title of "Greek Lines, and Other Architectural Essays." 1874 (Hon.) Phi Beta Kappa Society.

ALBRA WADLEIGH, b. Biddeford, Me., 3 July, 1832. Fitted for college partly at Boston Latin School, and partly under a private tutor. Entered General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York City in fall of 1854. Graduated 31 May, 1857, and ordained deacon June 3. October, 1857, rector of St. James Church, Muncy, Lycoming County, Penn. In 1860 was in Europe some time with Blight. After nine years' service at Muncy was rector of Christ Church at Williamsport, Penn., till April, 1869, when he accepted a call from St. Luke's Church at Germantown, where he was at time of his death in May, 1873. He married 27 June, 1861, at Philadelphia, Miss Emily Rawle, daughter of F. W. Rawle.

WILLIAM WIRT WARREN, eldest son of William and Abby Lyman Warren, b. 27 Feb., 1834, in Brighton.

Fitted for college at the high school in Brighton. Teacher of a school in New Bedford, Mass., for six months after graduating. In 1855 Harvard Law School. LL.B. 1856. Studied law in the office of John Phelps Putnam. Town Clerk of Brighton 1856-66. 1865 appointed by President Johnson Collector of Internal Revenue for Seventh Congressional District. State Senator from Third Middlesex District 1870. 1874 Representative to the Forty-fourth Congress from Eighth Congressional District, Massachusetts, as a Democrat, where he served one term. Commenced law practice in Boston 1859. In 1862 formed a partnership with Proctor. Trustee of the Public Library in Brighton, and Director in the Brighton Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association. Member of Bethesda Lodge Masons. In 1876 delivered address to the graduating class of the Georgetown Law School, and in 1877 delivered the Fourth of July oration before government of Boston. He married 6 Oct., 1859, Miss Mary L. Adams, of Newton, by whom he had three sons, one of whom, Bentley W., graduated at Williams in 1885. Died in Brighton 2 May, 1880, of pneumonia.

JOSEPH ROWE WEBSTER, son of Moses and Hannah R., b. Milton, Mass., 3. Nov., 1833. Fitted for college at Phillips Exeter Academy. Entered Sophomore. Entered Harvard Medical School 1854, Massachusetts Medical College November, 1854. M.D., Harvard, 1859. Practised in Milton, Natick, Dorchester, Boston. Has been Selectman and member of School Committee of Milton, member of Massachusetts Medical Society, Society of Natural History, and Horticultural Society. In 1857 married Priscilla H. Hollis, and has four children (Hollis, A.B. H.U. 1884, and Joseph Rowe, A.B. H.U. 1893).

JOHN DOANE WELLS, son of George W. Wells and Lucia G. Fairfield, b. Kennebunk, Me., 13 Dec., 1834. Fitted for college at Roxbury Latin School. Was for two months in Law School at Cambridge. Kept a private school at Natchez, Miss., for two years. Entered Divinity School, Cambridge, in 1857; graduated in 1860. In December, 1860, was settled over First Congregational Church at Quincy, Mass., where he remained fifteen years, during which he was Chairman School Committee for four years. In 1864 served five months as Corporal in Sixtieth Massachusetts Regiment, United States Volunteers. In 1877 started a Unitarian church at Los Angeles, Cal., over which he was settled for three years. From 1881 to 1883 was pastor of the First Unitarian Church at Laconia, N.H. Married in 1860 to Miss Annie L. Wadsworth, daughter of Commodore Wadsworth, and has had eight children, six of whom are living. Since May, 1884, has been Clerk and Auditor of Massachusetts State Board of Lunacy and Charity.

FREDERIC WHEELER, son of Increase S. (H.U. 1826) and Elizabeth A. M. Walker, b. Framingham, Mass., 20 April, 1832. Fitted for college at schools and academy in Framingham, and for a while was at Phillips Exeter Academy. In September, 1854, in law office of Charles R. Train. September, 1855, at Dane Law School. EUGENE LLEWELLYN WHITE, son of James and Lydia L. White, b. Belfast, Me., 31 Jan., 1833. Studied law for some time in office of Clifford & Adams, Portland, Me. Practised law in Belfast. In 1869-71 was employed in the United States Revenue Department, San Francisco. For a while was engaged in mining at Virginia City, Nevada. June, 1873, keeping a general country store in Marin County, Cal. Is reported as being married, and having children. May 30, 1894, at San Nata, Marin County, Cal.

GEORGE BARKER WINSHIP, son of Charles May Winship and Susan Barker, b. Roxbury, Mass., 3 Jan., 1834. Fitted for college at Roxbury Latin School. Fall 1854 at Harvard Medical School. M.D. 1857. 5 June, 1856, Assistant Physician at Boston Lunatic Hospital. In 1859, after a severe course of physical training, delivered lectures on physical training, which he illustrated himself by lifting nine hundred and twenty-nine pounds' dead weight, holding a dumb-bell weighing one hundred pounds over his head, shouldering a barrel of flour, and such like feats. Was generally believed to be the strongest man of his weight in the world at this time. Subsequently established an institution for lifting for the health in Boston. Married to Miss Rebecca G. Haskins, daughter of Rev. Green Haskins, 28 April, 1868. Died of heart disease in Roxbury, 12 Sept., 1876.

ROBERT CHARLES WINTHROP, JR. (eldest son of Hon. Robert C. Winthrop by his first wife, Eliza Cabot Blanchard), b. in Boston, 7 Dec., 1834, and fitted for college mainly at Phillips Academy, Andover. After graduating was a year in the Harvard Law School, and subsequently in the law office of Messrs. Hodges & Saltonstall. Admitted to the Suffolk Bar in 1857, but never practised. From 1857 to 1872 resided the greater part of the time in Europe, coming home at occasional intervals. Has had a winter residence in Boston since 1872, passing his summers in a great variety of places. Has led from preference a retired life, has never taken any part in politics, and has held no appointments worth mentioning. Belongs to a number of societies and clubs, among them the Massachusetts Historical Society and the Wednesday Evening Club of 1777. Has read numerous papers to the Massachusetts Historical Society, which are to be found in its published Proceedings, and some of which have been separately printed. Has edited for the same society several volumes of selections from historical manuscripts of the Colonial and Provincial periods, and is still engaged in similar work. He married first 15 Oct., 1857, Frances Pickering, youngest daughter of Benjamin Adams, of Boston. She died without issue in Rome, Italy, 23 April, 1860. He married second, 1 June, 1869, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Robert Means Mason, of Boston, by whom he has a son, Robert Mason Winthrop, b. 1873, and two daughters.

LEONARD JARVIS WYETH, son of Leonard J. Wyeth and Caroline Archer, b. 29 Oct., 1833, in New York City. Was fitted for college under a private tutor. Since graduation has lived in comparative retirement, and has not replied to several letters which have been written him; but it is reported that he was for a while in the Medical School in New York City, and has been married to Miss Mary Prime, and has had several children.

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

C. E. BUTLER, son of Charles and Jane H. Russ, b. Thomaston, Me., 20 April, 1828. Prepared for college by the Rev. O. J. Fernald. Entered our class, but left during first term Freshman year on account of ill-health, and studied law in office of Ruggles & Gould, Thomaston, Me.

J. BATES DICKSON, son of Joshua G. and Sarah Meinzies, b. Cincinnati, Ohio, 9 Feb., 1833. Fitted for college by E. S. Brooks, of Cincinnati. Entered our class, but left December, 1851, and engaged in the crockery ware business in Cincinnati. Was among the first to volunteer his services to the government in the Civil War. Was First Lieutenant and Captain in the Twelfth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and filled with marked success the office of Acting Adjutant-General of the Army of the Cumberland, serving under Generals Burbridge, Rosecrans, Palmer, Grant, and Sherman. During the long and arduous campaign in the West he contracted the disease which eventually undermined his constitution and caused his death, which occurred at Honolulu (where he had gone for his health) 21 Feb., 1877, leaving a widow and one child.

JOSEPH PRENTISS HUBBELL, son of Peter Hubbell and Jane Prentiss, b. Coxsackie, Greene County, N.Y., 9 July, 1833. Educated for Harvard at New Haven, Conn., under the care of Aaron Skinner. Entered as Freshman, but soon left college, and entered crockery ware business in the firm of Swope & Hubbell in Chicago. He was in business for about seven years, when he came to Charlestown, Mass., at the residence of his father, where he remained unemployed until August, 1862, when he enlisted as a private in Company C, Thirty-ninth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, where he served faithfully until his death, which took place at Stone Hospital, Washington, D.C., 7 July, 1863.

J. S. MARMADUKE, b. Salina County, Mo., 1833. When seventeen, he entered Yale College, class of 1854, where he remained two years, and then for some time was a member of our class. In 1853 a cadet at West Point, and graduated there in 1857, and was assigned to Lieutenancy in Seventh United States Infantry, under Sidney Johnston. In 1860 resigned, and entered the Confederate service where he was known as a hard fighter and for his intrepid gallantry. In October, 1864, he was captured by United States troops, and for a year was a prisoner at Fort Warren in Boston Harbor. After the war he returned to Missouri. Engaged in various business pursuits, was elected Governor of the State in 1884, and died at Jefferson City, Mo., 28 (?) Dec., 1887.

JAMES S. MERRIAM, son of General Ela Merriam and Lydia Sheldon, b. Locust Grove, N.Y., 29 May, 1829. Fitted for college at Utica Academy. Entered with our class, but left after first term, and entered Columbia College, but left at end of the Junior year, and became the instructor in the Classical Department of the Columbia College Grammar School. Received degree with his class, and then studied law. In 1884 was heard of as practising law in New York.

DOUGLAS WALWORTH, son of John P. and Sarah Wren, b. Natchez, Miss., 14 June, 1833. Left Natchez at age of seventeen, removed to Cambridge, and entered Harvard in 1850. Left at end of second term, Freshman year, on account of his health. Was in the Sophomore Class at Nassau Hall, Princeton, N.J., but was obliged to leave there on account of his health. Returned to Natchez, where he studied law with William J. Martin, and was admitted to the bar there in February, 1855. Married Rebecca Conner January, 1856. He writes: "This is the humble tribute to the Class Book of the class of '54 of one who, but a short time a member, still cherishes for the class the warmest friendship and liveliest recollections. To any old friend who may pause at the name subscribed, I would say that, though the name gives forth no friendly greeting in words, it does in memory; and, if the hand were there, its grasp would be as warm as it once was. And here, friends, let me say, in conclusion, you are all loved and remembered by your quondam classmate and sincere friend, DOUGLAS WALWORTH, of Natchez, Miss." Has devoted himself largely to literary pursuits, and has been for some years editor of a Natchez paper. His first wife dying, he has since married Jeanette Haderman, the authoress of a book entitled "Southern Silhouettes," and some other works of fiction.

EVARTS SCUDDER, son of Charles and Jane Marshall, b. Boston, 2 Jan., 1832. Fitted for college at the Roxbury Latin School. Left our class in Sophomore year, and went to Williams College. A.B. 1854. Studied at the Andover Theological Seminary, and entered the Orthodox Congregational ministry. Was settled over churches at Kent, Conn., and Great Barrington, Mass. Married Sarah Lamson, of Andover, and had one son, Charles Locke (A.B. Yale 1882, M.D. Harvard 1889). He died at Great Barrington, Mass., on May 15, 1886.

COMMENCEMENT DAY,

19 July, 1854, was pleasant, but very hot, as all Commencement days proverbially are. The services were held in the Unitarian church, as usual; and the "parts" were said, by supposed competent judges, to be unusually good. The Professor of Rhetoric expressed himself as highly gratified at the general good appearance of the class. After the exercises in the church many of the class attended the Commencement Dinner, where after some of the elder company had retired they amused themselves singing and having a good time generally.

CLASS DAY.

Class Day was 23 June, 1854. The weather was not very propitious. It rained early in the morning. About nine o'clock the rain ceased, but the sky was cloudy during the day. The state of the weather prevented dancing on the green, much to the disappointment of the class. At ten o'clock the class assembled, and marched to the residence of Mr. Sparks, where three cheers were given for Mrs. Sparks, from thence to a room in University Hall, where appropriate selections from the Bible were read and a prayer offered by the Class Chaplain, Wadleigh. After this they went to Dr. Walker's house, where they partook of some refreshments. At twelve o'clock as escort to the President and Faculty, they marched to the Chapel, where the oration and poem were delivered and the ode sung. Winthrop's oration gave general satisfaction, and Preston's poem was amusing and witty. In the afternoon there was dancing in Harvard Hall. At half-past six the class danced round the tree, sang "Auld Lang Syne," cheered the college officers and buildings, and separated. A soirée at President Walker's in the evening closed the public festivities of the day. Many of the class, however, had social meetings at their rooms in the evening, at which the utmost jollity and good humor prevailed.

ORDER OF EXERCISES FOR CLASS DAY,

FRIDAY, JUNE 23, 1854.

I. MUSIC. II. PRAYER. III. ORATION, by Robert Charles Winthrop, Jr., Boston. IV. MUSIC. V. POEM, by William Arthur Preston, New Ipswich, N.H. VI. ODE, by Oliver Shepard Leland, Waltham.

AIR,—Fair Harvard.

In the clime of the olive the bold cavalier,
 Ere he leaves the dear home of his youth,
 As he prays to the Virgin to bless a career
 Which he pledges to Honor and Truth,
 Takes a leaf from the laurel his fathers bequeathed,
 And breathes his heart's dearest desire:
 On the brow of the son may that laurel be wreathed
 Which was won, which was worn, by the sire.

As we gather a flow'ret — our last — from the tree
 Which our hearts' warm affections entwine,
 And fade on the echo, o'er hillside and lea,
 The lingering notes of "Lang Syne,"
 We will hope that the flower our footsteps may bless,
 May be with us in joy and in gloom;
 It will bloom with new life in the hour of success,
 It shall blossom and wave o'er the tomb.

A dream of the future is dazzling our sight,
 As we start on Life's perilous way,
 And sunbeams are glancing their rays of delight
 To lead our rapt senses astray;

Our eyes would fain linger on each fairy hue,
 But a sigh, all unbidden, will start,
 And a tear, which we cannot repress, blot the view,
 As we sorrow to think that we part.

The spell must be broken that binds us in thrall,
 Thy magic veil severed in twain;
 Thy mists of enchantment, dear mother, must fall,
 The beams of thy day-star must wane.
 And, though our emotion we seek to conceal,
 They seem like a sadly sweet knell,
 Those sighs which the depths of our sorrow reveal
 As we mournfully bid thee farewell.

The Dudleian lecture during the Freshman year was preached by Dr. F. H. Hedge, of Providence; Sophomore year, by Dr. Bushnell, of Hartford; Junior year, by Rev. Mr. Burnap, of Baltimore; Senior year, by Rev. Dr. Bacon, of New Haven.

Rev. James Walker, D.D., was inaugurated President May 24, 1853. Before the services in the church President Walker assisted the Senior Class in planting a tree in the college yard, as was usually the custom on such occasions.

ODE

FOR THE SUPPER OF THE CLASS OF 1854, JUNE 26, 1854.
BY FORBUSH.

Sapias, vina liques.—HORACE.

AIR,—Sparkling and Bright.

We have met o'er the wine
With joy divine
In the years that were so fleeting;
But the years are past,
And the hour, at last,
Has come for farewell greeting.

Pour the wine once more
As in days of yore!
'Tis endeared by memories olden;
And bards in their lays
Have sung its praise,
And basked in its brilliance golden.

Each thought it wakes
New radiance takes,
But it thrills the memory nearest,
And brings up bright,
In golden light,
The scenes and hopes that are dearest.

There are mists of the sky
Which to Science's eye
Are stars all brightly shining:
So the Future's care
Our bumpers fair
With Victory's wreaths are twining.

From the scenes of to-day
 We turn away,
 And we leave them all behind us;
 But, since we know,
 Where'er we go,
 The ancient ties still bind us,

Chorus.

We will not part
 With heavy heart,
 But with youthful hope we'll sever;
 And our friendships old
 Shall ne'er grow cold,
 Shall be forgotten never.

ODE

FOR TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY CLASS SUPPER, JUNE 23, 1874. BY THOMPSON.

Can it be that our twentieth year-stone is past
 Since as men we first took A.B. line?
 The grade has been upward, but that cannot last,
 For the slope will be sure to decline.
 We have reached the Sierras: the ocean behind
 More remote than the ocean before.
 There is gray at our temples and shades o'er our mind.
 The swift wheels will roll eastward no more.
 The relentless conductor permits us to halt
 At this station, refreshments to take.
 "Desipere in loco"—(my English's at fault)
 Look about, and dear memories wake.
 A truce to the rumble, the jar, and the steam,
 The dust and the heat and the pelf!
 Let's forget our own dust, that the Ego may gleam,
 All the younger not thinking of self.

But, my brothers, remember the dust that's inurned,
 Sadly note our diminishing train.
 Have we garlands enough for the spirits that burned
 Meteoric, but blazed not in vain,
 Who lighted their torch at the nation's camp fire,
 Whose martial right hands clutched the steel,—
 Those hands we knew gentle as lover's desire,
 And their touch at our palms we still feel?
 Other spirits as gentle, as brave, and as true,
 And discharging all duty as well,
 Come no more to our banquet, no more to our view.
 There is marble their story to tell.
 Sweet companions they were both in campus and hall,
 And fondly we cherish each name.
 Whether tragic or happy, the fate of us all
 A few lustrums will witness the same.
 But who thinks of repining? The world is as fair
 At our noon as it was at our morn.
 The regrets of old friendship comes love to repair,
 And the little loves sure to be born.
 Wine, women, and art — yes, and cold water, too —
 We relish at forty or so,
 And science and work and whatever is true
 And whatever is jolly to know.
 So joy is in order. How feels each old hand?
 Let us grasp, and the wrinkles squeeze out.
 Come Bacchus and Ceres, "et id omne" band,
 We left Venus at home beyond doubt.
 And, when our train starts for the sea that they call
 The Pacific, whose waters await,
 Let us hope that through peace and through verdure may fall
 Our lives to a far "Golden Gate."

On June 23 Memorial Hall, which was designed by Van Brunt, was dedicated with appropriate exercises.

June 24, 1874, 4 Stoughton received 19,—Potter, Proctor, Daves, Gibbs, Bigelow, Tallmadge, Slack, Conner, Bancroft, Knowles, Prentiss, Webster, Jeffries, Colburn, Putnam, Hayden, Winthrop, Van Brunt, Coolidge; and a resolution on Gerrish's death was passed.

June 30, 1875, 55 Thayer received 16,—Bigelow, Bancroft, Warren, Gibbs, Forbush, Webster, Colburn, Prentiss, Putnam, Hayden, Knowles, McEvoy, Jeffries, Van Brunt, Curtis, Coolidge.

June 28, 1876, 12 members visited 5 Thayer,—Forbush, Webster, Hayden, Prentiss, Gibbs, C. Thorndike, Van Brunt, Bigelow, Colburn, F. L. Ames, Knowles, Coolidge. Sanders Theatre was first used for the Commencement exercises.

June 27, 1877, 19 visited 35 Weld,—Gibbs, Prentiss, Bigelow, Webster, Colburn, Potter, Putnam, Forbush, Bancroft, Warren, Proctor, McEvoy, C. Thorndike, F. L. Ames, Hayden, Denny, Van Brunt, Jeffries, Coolidge. Suitable resolutions on Winship's death were passed. President Hayes, Carl Schurz, and Attorney-general Devens were present at the Commencement exercises, and attended the dinner.

June 26, 1878, 11 Matthews Hall received 18 members,—W. A. Preston, Bigelow, Blight, Gibbs, Van Brunt, Webster, Hayden, McEvoy, Slack, F. L. Ames, Potter, Bancroft, Forbush, Colburn, Putnam, Prentiss, C. Thorndike, Coolidge. Suitable resolutions were passed on the death of J. W. Ames, Dorr, and Knowles.

June 24, 1879, our classmate Winthrop, in pursuance of a long-cherished intention, which found expression in an invitation at the last Commencement, gave an elegant supper at Young's Hotel this evening. 34 members—namely, Daves, Colburn, Prentiss, Dana, Coolidge, Tucker, Warren, Blight, Gibbs, Wells, Denny, Bailey, Bigelow, F. L. Ames, Furness, Tredick, Webster, Van Brunt, W. A. Preston, Stetson, Slack, Proctor, Tallmadge, Potter, C. Thorndike, Slater, Lothrop, Hayden, Jeffries, Putnam, Conner, Forbush, Johnson, Bancroft—accepted Winthrop's hospitality, and a very enjoyable time was had. Forbush furnished an original ode, and Proctor some "Young's Night Thoughts." Thompson also furnished an ode.

ODE

FOR THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CLASS
OF 1854. BY FORBUSH.

AIR,—Fair Harvard.

"Nel mezzo del cammin di nostra vita."

Gather, classmates, again as so oft in old time,
And recall days and scenes long gone by.
As we met in our youth, let us meet in our prime,
Heart to heart, hand to hand, eye to eye.
Twenty-five years have flown since we fared forth in life,
Like the "bold cavalier" of our song;
Though his "laurel" be greener or faded in strife,
We are yet the same brotherly throng.

Of those years what the burden? Life's pleasures and care
And its conflicts to us in full scope.
To republics God-speed! And to tyrants beware!
To mankind broader freedom and hope!
And to thee, Alma Mater, new wreaths on thy brow!
To thy shrine more young votaries press!
And thy halls are more stately, thy trees wider grow
In the glory and pride of success.

Where is he, our class leader? In battle's mad rush,
In the front of his squadrons he fell.
Others, too, of our band died in youth's fiery flush,
For the cause and the land loved so well.
As we gaze on our ranks, we miss each kindly face
Of all who are gone from our side:
In fond recollection we keep them a place,
In our hearts to forever abide.

To their ashes be peace! Now close ranks, and march on!
For before us still stretches life's plain.
May they who have won nobly hold to their own,
And they who have lost yet regain!
But, whatever our lot, when a classmate we meet,
May hand clasp with hand as of yore,
And with true hearty warmth and affection still greet,
In remembrance of old "fifty-four"!

June 25, 1879, 41 Matthews received 26,—Bigelow, W. A. Preston, Bancroft, Webster, Prentiss, C. Thorndike, McEvoy, Furness, Lothrop, Wells, Proctor, Colburn, Daves, Conner, Tallmadge, Putnam, Bailey, Van Brunt, Dana, Blight, Potter, Hayden, Winthrop, Jeffries, Gibbs, Coolidge. Potter, Van Brunt, Blight, and Secretary were appointed a committee to procure funds for placing a memorial window in Memorial Hall and an appropriate design.

June 30, 1880, 17 visited 41 Matthews,—Bigelow, Bailey, Bancroft, Conner, Blight, Colburn, Slack, F. L. Ames, Gibbs, Prentiss, Webster, Putnam, C. Thorndike, Hayden, Van Brunt, Preston, Coolidge. Committee to raise funds for class reported that they had raised $1,056. Warren's death was suitably remembered.

June 29, 1881, 41 Matthews received 16,—Preston, Bigelow, Conner, Gibbs, Slack, Bailey, Bancroft, Prentiss, Colburn, Blight, Webster, Van Brunt, C. Thorndike, Codman, Potter, Coolidge. Suitable notice was taken of the deaths of Gambrell, Forbush, Swift, and Gary. A new committee was appointed about memorial window, the expense of the same not to exceed $2,000.

June 28, 1882, 45 Matthews received 14 members,—Colburn, Preston, Van Brunt, Bancroft, Prentiss, Conner, Gibbs, Bigelow, Potter, Webster, Blight, C. Thorndike, Hayden, Coolidge. Designs for memorial window were adopted, and the Secretary was instructed to insert in our records "that our class window is erected in memory of those of our classmates who died for the Union during the war."

June 27, 1883, 41 Matthews, 14 present,—Bailey, Bigelow, Hayden, Gibbs, Preston, Prentiss, Webster, Bancroft, Proctor, Potter, F. L. Ames, Van Brunt, C. Thorndike, Coolidge. Van Brunt reported that the memorial window was completed and placed in Memorial Hall. The father of our classmate, Mr. I. S. Wheeler, handed in $50 for the class fund "in memoriam."

June 25, 1884, 35 Weld, 15 members,—Bigelow, Preston, Conner, Jeffries, Bailey, Gibbs, Colburn, Webster, Dana, Van Brunt, Bancroft, Putnam, Potter, C. Thorndike, Coolidge. McEvoy's death was properly noticed. Van Brunt reported that the memorial window had been paid for into about $30, whereupon a classmate paid the amount of the deficit. It appearing that Mrs. William B. Rogers, sister of Savage, had given $100 toward the expense of the window, the thanks of the class were extended for her liberal contribution.

On the memorial window are the inscriptions :—

From Sophocles : "If I have done the State some service, my own fate concerns me not."

From "Coriolanus," Act I., Scene 3 : "Had I a dozen sons, I had rather had eleven die nobly for their country than one voluptuously surfeit out of action."

"In memory of our classmates who fell in the defence of the Union."

On the memorial tablets in the hall :—

"Richard Chapman Goodwin, 9 August, 1862, Cedar Mountain."

"James Savage, 22 October, 1862, Cedar Mountain."

"Charles Russell Lowell, 20 October, 1864, Cedar Creek."

June 24, 1885, 9 Matthews received 15,—Potter, Bailey, Preston, Bigelow, Gibbs, Prentiss, Bancroft, Hayden, Putnam, C. Thorndike, Webster, Proctor, Colburn, Van Brunt, Coolidge. The health of John Langdon Sibley, A.M., Librarian Emeritus, was drank ; and the Secretary was instructed to send him the cordial greeting of the class, with the wish that his health might be permanently restored.

June 30, 1886, 9 Matthews received 11,—Bigelow, Prentiss, Colburn, Webster, Preston, Bancroft, Putnam, Bailey, Potter, C. Thorndike, Coolidge. Cutter's death was suitably noticed.

26 members attended the exercises at Sanders Theatre on 8 Nov., 1886, Memorial Day ; and 14 attended the dinner.

June 29, 1887, 8 members visited 9 Matthews,—Colburn, Bigelow, Bailey, Putnam, Prentiss, Bancroft, Webster, Coolidge. Due notice was taken of W. Thorndike's death.

June 27, 1888, 12 members visited 9 Matthews,— Colburn, Bigelow, Daves, Conner, F. L. Ames, Putnam, Tallmadge, Bailey, Prentiss, Webster, Soren, Coolidge. We missed the call to-day of Mr. I. S. Wheeler, a graduate of 1826, who had called at our room every Commencement (save one) since our graduation, to give us, as he expressed it, "his blessing." He died during the previous year.

June 26, 1889, 9 members visited 9 Matthews,— Bailey, Gibbs, Potter, Prentiss, F. L. Ames, Putnam, Thorndike, Webster, Coolidge. Proper notice was taken of Huntington's death.

June 25, 1890, 10 members visited 9 Matthews,— Ames, Bailey, Bigelow, Blight, Gibbs, Prentiss, Putnam, Webster, Thorndike, Coolidge. Suitable notice was taken of the deaths of Colburn, Paine, McLure, and Thompson.

June 24, 1891, 11 members visited 9 Matthews,— Bailey, Bigelow, Gibbs, Dana, Proctor, Potter, Putnam, Prentiss, Webster, Thorndike, Coolidge. Proper notice was taken of Slater's death.

June 29, 1892, 9 members visited 15 Matthews,— Bailey, Webster, Safford, Prentiss, Hayden, Putnam, Ames, Thorndike, Coolidge.

June 28, 1893, 13 members visited 9 Matthews,— Bailey, Bigelow, Daves, Ames, Bancroft, Hayden, Haseltine, Putnam, Prentiss, Webster, Soren, Thorndike, Coolidge. Gibbs declined re-election on Class Committee, and Daves was chosen in his place. Class Committee was instructed to provide a supper on the evening of the day preceding Commencement; and the Secretary was requested to have printed a record of the class, with such other matter as may be interesting.
